300 PLANES DESTROYED IN RAID, BERLIN BOASTS

German columns today entered the Allies' "escape" port of Dunkirk, the Nazi high command reported, virtually completing the bloody conquest of Flanders.

It was not disclosed how many French and British troops still remained in the channel city, said the Associated Press.

The German high command also claimed 300 to 400 Allied planes were destroyed in hangars and on the ground in addition to 109 shot down yesterday in the raid on Paris.

Reports sent earlier today that Berlin and Munich had been bombed in reprisal remained unconfirmed. The reports were denied in Berlin.

300 to 400 Planes Destroyed?

"They succeeded in eliminating the enemy air defense and, in attacks at high and low altitude, they obtained the strongest effect on ports and industrial establishments of the French air force.

"Numerous fires and explosions were observed.

"In air fights, 109 airplanes were shot down and between 300 and 400 machines were destroyed in sheds and on the ground.

"Our anti-aircraft shot down 21 machines on June 3.

"Despite these extraordinary successes only nine of our machines are missing."

The high command said Allied planes repeated night raids last night in Holland, western and southern Germany with success "just as small as hitherto."

Paris said 17 German planes were shot down in yesterday's aerial attack on the French capital.

RAID HELD MILITARY

Authorized French circles said the government would regard the hour-long raid, which took a toll of 45 dead and 200 wounded, as aimed at "military objectives"—not a raid on an open city.

France could "justifiably attack" factories around Berlin, it was said, but not civilian themselves.

Time bombs dropped by the 300 high-flying Nazi planes were still exploding in Paris today.

Berlin was quiet overnight, although it had been expected that the Allies might pay a "return call" on the German capital.

The Italian cabinet approved a series of war measures, extending its organization for war to its African possessions, but gave as yet no hint of the date for its long-heralded plunge into the European conflict.

Paris was awakened before dawn today by the clatter of anti-aircraft guns and the drone of planes. German planes—apparently scouting craft—were driven off without an air alarm being sounded.

An official German announcement said Nazi raiders had de-

DAMAGED GERMAN BOMBER IS REPAIRED BY ITALIANS

By MERRILL MUELLER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, June 4—Italian aircraftsmen at Milan on Saturday repaired a German JU-88 bombing plane damaged during the Nazi air raid on Marseille, this correspondent is able to reveal today.

Also, the Italian frontier is now pack-jammed with troops—the strongest possible indication that Premier Mussolini's entry into the war is not far away.

Returning to Paris from the Balkans by way of Italy, I landed at the Milan airport at 4 p. m. yesterday, and was surprised to see Italian mechanics swarming about what was obviously a German military airplane. As a licensed pilot, I may lay claim to knowledge of the machines of various nations, and of this there was no doubt.

ESCORTED OFF FIELD

I walked as close as possible to the plane and found that its right wing motor had been damaged by anti-aircraft fire. Its German crew was on hand directing the Italian workers in their repairs.

The ship had just set down on the airport. It signified an interesting chapter in this war and I would have liked to learn more about it and the raid in which it participated, but the Italian police on duty at the field made clear they did not approve of my curiosity.

The upshot was that they questioned me and then escorted me off the field. There was nothing else to do but take my train to the border via Genoa.

Along the entire route we passed Italian troop trains and supply trains moving northward in ceaseless procession. I was forced to remain overnight near the Italian border and was amazed to find literally thousands of Italian officers scattered through the various towns although comparatively few private soldiers were in evidence.

I saw heavy artillery being moved into the Italian Alps and viewed airdromes loaded with Italian war planes. Ostensibly, the ships were massed for celebration of national aeronautical week, but their strategic placements cannot be overlooked.

PRAISE FOR MUSSOLINI

The walls of buildings throughout Italy are now plastered with posters praising Mussolini not only as Il Duce and leader of the Italian people, but as "empire builder."

Italian newspapers and magazines are full of articles calling pointed attention to the fact that Italy's great fleet and air force are compelled to operate in what is bitterly termed "English territory"—meaning the Mediterranean.

On the way up to Paris I spent a night at Marseille, helping to load up refugee trains of women and children. I was able to see some of the effects of Saturday's

Nazi Raid Close To Stratosphere

PARIS, June 4 (INS)—Revelation today that German planes which participated in yesterday's raids on Paris flew at heights of from 20,000 to 30,000 feet indicates the maneuver was practically a strathosphere performance.

Over Paris, the strathosphere, or isothermal layer, is approximately seven miles above the earth's surface. The Germans attained altitude of nearly six miles.

Egypt Orders 500 German Jews to Go

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 4 (AP) — Americans are leaving Egypt in steadily increasing numbers, the government facilitating exit visas for foreigners and refusing permits for re-entry.

Five hundred German refugees—mostly Jews—who have enjoyed full liberty in Egypt since the outbreak of European war, have been ordered to leave the country within eight days or be interned. Fifteen Germans arrested here have been sent to concentration camps.

335,000 Saved Says Churchill Despite Colossal Allied Defeat

LONDON, June 4—Prime Minister Churchill today admitted the Allies had suffered a "colossal defeat" in the Flanders campaign.

He warned that all the continental channel ports now were in German hands and that Britain must "expect another blow to be struck almost immediately at us or at the French."

He declared that Britain would carry this war to victory "if necessary for years—if necessary alone" despite the Flanders debacle.

Proudly he related the "miraculous" withdrawal of 335,000 British and French troops from beleaguered Dunkirk. But he warned that "wars are not won by evacuations" and that the "Allies must be careful not to assign "to this deliverance the attributes of victory."

WILL NEVER QUIT

Churchill paid homage to the 4000 British defenders of the port of Calais who held off the Germans for four days and finally were rescued by the British navy with only 30 left unwounded.

Churchill disclosed that the R. A. F. used "part of the main metropolitan fighter strength" assigned to guard London to strike at German bombers and their protecting fighters who were harassing the movement of the troops across the channel.

He told the cheering House that Britain "shall not be content with a defensive war" and said the nation would never give up the struggle against German tyranny.

He said the deliverance of the troops from Dunkirk was largely due to the work of the Royal Air Force, guarding the 220 light warships and 620 other vessels, employed in the work.

30,000 CASUALTIES

He said more than 30,000 men in the B. E. F. had been killed, wounded or are missing.

Nearly 1000 guns were left behind in the evacuation of Flanders, he said.

The Germans claim that 330,000 British and French were taken prisoners in Flanders and Artois.—Edito's note.

Before a crowded house, Churchill outlined the history of events from the time the Germans broke through the Sedan-Meuse defenses.

"Only rapid retreat to Amiens could have saved the situation," he said.

"But the French high command, which was in complete charge of the situation, did not immediately realize this strategic fact.

"The German eruption swept up the coast like a sharp scythe.

"The British at Calais were given an hour in which to surrender.

SACRIFICE NOT VAIN

"But there were four days of street fighting before silence settled over Calais. Only 30 unwounded survivors were brought off by the navy.

"Four thousand English troops defended Calais to the last.

"The sacrifice was not in vain. At least two German armored divisions had to be sent to overcome them. They added another page of glory and enabled the Gravelines water-line, held by the French, and the port of Dunkirk to be kept open."

Describing the evacuation from Dunkirk which has been cited as a masterpiece of military strategy and co-operation, Churchill said:

"A week ago I feared it would be my hard lot to announce today the greatest military disaster in our history.

"I thought perhaps that 20,000 or 30,000 might be re-embarked, but it certainly seemed that the whole French first army and the whole of the B. E. F. north of the Amiens-Abbeville gap would be broken up in the open field or forced to capitulate for lack of food and ammunition.

FACED IGNOMINIOUS DEFEAT

"The whole root and core of the brave British army, on which we were to build great British armies in the later years of the war, seemed about to perish in the field or to be led into ignominious and starving captivity."

Churchill then proceeded to refer to the "final blow" of iKng Leopold's surrender "on his own personal act."

"He surrendered his army and exposed our whole flank without means of retreat," Churchill said to the accompaniment of cries of "shame."

"I do not feel that any reason now exists why we should not form our own opinion of this pitiful episode."

Here the members cheered and shouted "treachery!"

"The enemy attacked us from all sides," Churchill continued. "They concentrated on the beaches of Dunkirk.

"The enemy cannon-fired from the beaches, sowed magnetic mines in the channels and the seas and sent repeated waves of aircraft, sometimes over 100 strong, to bomb our troops, as they arrived at the coast.

CRUSHING NAZI BLOWS

"U-boats, one of which was sunk, and motor launches took a toll of the vast traffic . . . For four or five days an intense struggle raged as great masses of German infantry hurled themselves upon the ever-narrowing contracting appendix in which were the British and French armies."

He held out hope that "very many reported missing will come back here some day in one way or another." Moreover, against this loss, the prime minister declared, "we have set a far heavier loss on the Germans.

He admitted "enormous" material losses would further delay exten-

NAZIS' NEW CONCRETE BOMBS DIG DEEP PITS

WITH THE FRENCH AIR FORCE ON THE NORTHERN FRONT, June 4 (AP)—The German air force is using a new reinforced concrete bomb in its attacks on French airports.

The explosive is contained in a core of concrete which is itself placed inside an ordinary steel bomb.

Ordinary explosive bombs have been discovered to do relatively little damage to a landing field because the bombs explode almost on the surface and spray out in a cone rather than dig a deep crater.

The new concrete bomb, however, gives added weight, forcing the projectile deeper into the ground and ripping out a gaping hole.

Eden Calls For Double Draft

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—War Minister Anthony Eden said today the maximum number of conscripts which can be trained will be called up this month, doubling the normal rate.

Sufficient volunteers are available for the defense of London, Eden said.

He disclosed also that volunteers defending public utilities were armed with war department weapons and that others detailed for specific duty either had war department firearms or their own guns.

The war secretary told Commons the government was considering transporting interned aliens and prisoners of war to places remote from the British Isles in order to prevent their possible co-operation with German aircraft or parachute troops.

Eden said German parachute troops were equipped with heavy machine guns, infantry guns and light Howitzers in addition to "usual sidearms."

HITLER'S ARMY IN DUNKIRK

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES NEAR THE ENGLISH CHANNEL, June 4—Advance guards of Hitler's army penetrated the flaming ruins of Dunkirk today, reaching the "pivotal point" of Nazi Germany's next move in the war.

Lying under a gigantic pall of smoke, Dunkirk stood until today as the last refuge of some 60,000 remnants of three French armies, plus a few companies of the British expeditionary force which held on to the bitter end in a fatal "sack" only six miles by nine.

It was into this "sack" that Hitler drove the Allied legions within 21 days of the inauguration of total war on the western front.

The wedge driven into Dunkirk today marked the terminal point of his march to the channel.

The climax of operations in the Dunkirk area came in Sunday's great battle when the fortified and heavily defended town of Bergues, six miles from the last channel port unoccupied by the Germans, was stormed.

Since then the Germans have been pouring tons of bombs and artillery shells into Dunkirk, approaching the town in a wedge formation.

They have been mopping up the French crouching in pill-boxes, trenches and canals throughout the rolling wooded hills, crossing the flooded meadows and ditches between Bergues and Dunkirk.

16,000 HUB SCHOOL CADETS PARADE AS 49 BANDS BLARE

Beneath fluttering flags and guidons and with 49 school bands blaring, more than 16,000 Boston school cadets held their annual street parade in downtown Boston today.

Pretty high school girls, out for the day to watch the sterner half of the classes display their military training, were dressed in their sunniest finest along the route, their ranks augmented by fond parents and relatives.

The proudest boy of them all as he led the long line was Stephen Berestecki, colonel of the Hyde Park High School regiment, but today division commander of the whole works—with his Hyde Park cadets, the prize division, in the van of the parade.

COL. PENNY IN CHARGE

On Commdr. Berestecki's left was Brig.-Gen. Walter Mirapool of Dorchester High School and on his right was Maj. Bart Sullivan, chief of staff of the Hyde Park boys.

Behind them came John Mulkey of Hyde Park High, guidon bearer; Lieut.-Col. Thomas O'Neill of Dorchester High; Lieut.-Col. Francis Facchetti of Boston Trade School, and James Gibbons of Dorchester High, guidon bearer. Leading five battalions of English High cadets and and in black, Tagalion hat, came the gray-haired elderly and bespectacled Edward J. Connell, master at English High and the man who organized the first high school band in Boston 30 years ago.

In charge of the entire parade was Col. George Penny, senior instructor at Boston Latin School.

CAHILL REVIEWS PARADE

Scheduled to start at 9.30 a. m., the parade swung away from the starting line in Clarendon st., South End, at 9.42 and followed a route into Stuart st. to Park sq., to Boylston st. and Tremont st., where Mayor Tobin reviewed the khakiclad, rifle-toting cadets.

From Tremont st. the parade swung into Park st. and to the State House in Beacon st., where Lieut.-Gov. Cahill reviewed in the absence of Gov. Saltonstall.

A third reviewing stand, at Beacon and Charles sts., was occupied by the school committee and army officers from the First Corps Area.

Beyond this point in Beacon st., the cadets wound up their annual street display and picked up buses that would take them back to their school quarters.

5 Pupils Here Face Ouster in Flag Case

Expulsion from the Boston school system within the next few days loomed for five Hyde Park children unless they begin saluting the American flag, it was said today by Joseph C. White, chairman of the school committee.

Action by school authorities on their cases has been postponed for months pending decision of the Supreme Court on the Pennsylvania law requiring public school pupils to salute the flag.

Upholding of the law by the court, White said, means school authorities must make a final disposition of their cases.

NAMES KEPT SECRET

The five children, whose names have been kept secret, attend two elementary schools in the Hyde Park district, White said, and come from four families belonging to Jehovah's Witnesses.

At a meeting of the Boston school committee last night, White revealed, Supt. Arthur L. Gould was instructed to furnish a complete report together with the names of the children.

White suggested that before taking expulsion steps the parents of the children will be urged to permit them to take part in the flag salute exercises.

Failure of the parents to accede to such a request, White said, will mean the school committee will ask them to withdraw the children from the Boston school system.

Elsewhere in Massachusetts the problem of what to do with nonsaluting public school pupils occupied the attention of school and public officials.

The dilemma of authorities was made difficult by existence of a State law making public school attendance compulsory until the age of 14.

If the children are expelled from schools, it was pointed out, authorities may find themselves compelled to furnish substitute educational facilities.

The Saugus School Committee took immediate action after the court ruling which held against two Minerville, Pa., children, members of Jehovah Witnesses, whose counsel contended that saluting the flag infringed on their religious freedom.

At least seven pupils have been expelled at Saugus, long the center of controversy over the question. The children now are being taught in a private Jehovah Witnesses school.

ISSUE STILL OPEN

In addition to asking town counsel whether it has the right to order these children back into public schools, the school committee appealed to the State Department for an opinion

The high court has not covered the real issues in the case as it affects Massachusetts, in the opinion of a member of the board of superintendents of the Boston school department.

The issue, he contended, revolved around the right of such children to education at public expense and the right of children to refuse to salute the flag if it is against their religious convictions.

Juror Missing In Lottery Trial

Federal Judge George C. Sweeney today was obliged to halt the trial of Dr. Frank Deacon, one of the 72 defendants in the $20,000,000 Will Rogers Memorial Fund fake lottery in federal court, when a juryman failed to appear for duty.

A stir of excitement went through the crowded courtroom just before Dr. Deacon, ex-army doctor charged with transporting and conspiring to transport lottery matter, was scheduled to take the stand in his own defense when it was discovered Clarence L. Johnson of Linwood sq., Roxbury, Boston Elevated porter, was missing.

Judge Sweeney ordered a deputy United States marshal to bring him into court.

Dr. Arias Elected Panama President

PANAMA, Panama, June 4 (AP)—Polling the largest vote in the republic's history, Dr. Arnulfo Arias was elected president of Panama for a four-year term beginning Oct. 1. Dr. Arias, a physician and a brother of former President Harmodio Arias, was unopposed.

Council Acts to Balk WPA Layoff Here

Boston city officials today acted to avert a new scheduled layoff of WPA workers in Massachusetts.

The City Council sent copies of a resolution to the Masachusetts delegation in Congress which asks the delegation to confer at once with President Roosevelt.

COUNCIL IN ROW OVER $3250 JOB

A bitter battle behind the scenes in the Boston City Council over election of an assistant city messenger to the $3250 a year post vacated recently by the late William J. Walsh was forecast at City Hall today.

First inkling of the approaching political storm came when it was revealed that a quiet campaign is underway to obtain the post for former Rep. William Fish of Dorchester, brother of City Councilor Philip A. Fish.

Some members of the council feel that one of its veteran attaches should fill the Walsh vacancy. It is expected that they will register vigorous objection to the appointment of Fish.

The matter is expected to be brought into the open at the regular meeting of the City Council Monday. In the meantime, it was reported at City Hall, the Fish forces hope to enlist the support of 12 of the 22 members of the body, a majority vote being necessary for election to the post.

Stocks Steady In Slow Trade

NEW YORK, June 4 (AP)—War doubts continued as a handicap in today's stock market, but leading issues displayed mild recovery tendencies.

In dealings about as sluggish as in yesterday's dormant session, gains of fractions to around $1 a share were well distributed.

Favored were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Woolworth, Lockheed, duPont, Anaconda, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Loft and International Paper common and preferred.

Bonds loafed in narrow territory, as did major commodities. "Free" sterling and the French franc were lower in terms of the dollar.

Girl, 18, Routs Her Assailant

Scratching and biting her assailant, an 18-year-old Charlestown girl today routed a man who seized her as she was entering her home in Main st., near City sq.

The girl, named by police as Helen Doherty, bit the man at least once, on his face, during the brief, fierce struggle.

Police said he hid in the darkness of a vestibule. As Miss Doherty approached he grabbed her around the waist and tried to hold one hand over her face.

The screaming girl kicked and swung at her accoster with such fury that in a few seconds he turned and fled.

On the Charlestown high bridge Sergt. Bailey took a 36-year-old man into custody.

Police assert he recently was paroled from state prison after serving a three-to-five year sentence for molesting a woman. He was held for questioning in a lineup at police headquarters.

Tech Grads Warned U.S. May Be Headed For Socialist Rule

Unless American men and women, business and professional people, adopt a sense of personal responsibility in our government, they will awake one day to find this country a Socialist state, Henning W. Prentis, Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, warned today.

Addressing some 700 graduates of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at commencement exercises in Symphony hall, Prentis said:

"Not only radicals, but many well meaning persons of influence and power are willing to take questionable short-cuts to cherished social objectives. Witness the National Labor Relations Act."

CITES BRANDEIS'S WARNING

Justice Brandeis has warned us, he said, that the greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachments by me of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding; the individual, in the last analysis, accounts for all human progress, and unless we are on our guard, the individual, and all progress, will be lost in a creeping collectivism.

"When a group of men—no better, no worse than the rest of us—calling themselves government begin to plan to economic affairs of this nation, presumably for the greatest good of the greatest number, they cannot permit any citizen, not matter how well trained technically he might be, to throw a monkey wrench into the program.

"Hence government would inevitably have to control all agencies that form public opinion—newspapers, radio, school and church. I personally have seen that process at work in Germany, Italy and Russia. We want ae of it in America."

DEGREES TO 710

Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the institute awarded 710 degrees to the 691 candidates—several got more than one—including 13 women. Two women, Sarah Ruth Millman of Brooklyn, and Jane Lois Hastings of Norton, received doctor of philosophy degrees. Lone girl to receive a degree as undergraduate was Margaret Whitcomb of Winchester, N. H., a student of aeronautical engineering.

Commissions in the officers' reserve corps in United States armed forces were also awarded to 101 new graduates. Nearly 2000 persons attended the exercises, the 73d graduation at the college.

80 P. C. OF GRADS HAVE JOBS

Dr. Compton, repeating advice he once heard to a graduating class: "Shave every morning and pray every night," also warned that the tragic ruins we see today of the high hopes of the world and America at the close of the first World War are due in no small part to isolationism and pacificism in America.

"Our people in 1917 went into war with a high and worthy ideal," Dr. Compton said. "Those ideals are just as true today. But we lost our dream of peace because we were too selfish to reduce the bases for future wars in 1919 and because we, then, were unwilling to share the responsibility of peace."

Two optimistic notes were sounded at the exercises, when it was revealed that about 80 per cent of the 468 undergraduates who became graduates already have jobs or intend to continue their studies; and when Pierre S. duPont, retired chairman of the board of directors of E. I. duPont deNemours Co. said:

"We have faced dork days before when progress seemed at an end, but the young men of today will live to great a sunrise of progress and new opportunity."

SLOAN GIVES $100,000

At a dinner to mark his 10th year as president of Tech, Dr. Compton announced the part that the institute is playing in national defense.

Alfred P. Sloan, head of General Motors, has given the institution $100,000 for construction of one of the nation's greatest airplane engine laboratories, Dr. Compton said, to expand research for national defense; and several staff members have been loaned to the government.

At the same time a grant of $200,000 from the Rockefeller Institute to start a program of education and research in biological engineering was announced. Besides that, the institute has received $670,000 in gifts and bequests this year, Dr. Compton said.

Although he was graduated 72 years ago, Rev. Thomas Earle Babb, 99, oldest alumnus of Andover Theological Seminary, will receive his first theological degree at graduation tomorrow at the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre.

Rev. Mr. Babb, who was graduated before the seminary awarded degrees, will be awarded a bachelorship in sacred theology. His diploma will be of the type used when degrees were first given in 1895.

The annual reunion of Boston College alumni will be held Monday at 3 p. m. when the William V. McKenney memorial medal to an outstanding alumnus will be awarded.

At Regis College, Weston, the senior class bridal bouquet was won by Bernice M. Sullivan of Hopkinton, a prize which carries the traditional prediction that she will be the first to wed.

Dorchester Boy Wins Maine U. Scholarship

Walter Hugh Brady, Jr., of 2139 Dorchester ave., Dorchester, graduate of Huntington School and University of Maine pole vaulter and jumper, has been awarded the Pale Blue Key scholarship for 1941 at the University.

A freshman in electrical engineering in the college of technology, young Brady won the honor at the annual scholarship recognition day exercises at Orono. Brady, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Brady of Dorchester, is a pledge to Phi Gamma Delta.

Judge Bars Girl in Slacks

TULSA, June 4 (AP)—A. P. Murrah, a federal judge, doesn't want women in slacks in his court room.

He had Mrs. Naomi Still, a spectator, escorted from the courtroom by a bailiff.

"This is a court of justice, and I will not tolerate such conduct," the judge told her. "Women must wear dresses and not pants in my court."

Hub Fire Boxes To Get Reflectors

All Boston fire alarm boxes soon will be equipped with reflector devices which will enable persons to locate them more easily.

The reflectors will be installed on order of Fire Commissioner William Arthur Reilly, who said that signal boxes not illuminated by red lights are difficult to find in the dark. He said the relectors also will help prevent motorists from striking the posts which hold the signal boxes.

Vt. Woman's Death Laid to Weight Cure

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 4 (AP)—Dr. Harold M. Levin asserted today that the death of Mrs. Max Wax, 32-year-old mother of four, was caused by a form of thyroid tablets she was taking in an effort to reduce.

He said he learned that Mrs. Wax had taken the equivalent of five or six grains of the tablet daily for the last three years, becoming seriously ill and delirious last Wednesday. She died yesterday.

Dr. Levin said it was the first case he ever encountered in which a person lived more than 48 hours with a zero blood pressure. Five blood transfusions ,special medicine rushed from New York, oxygen treatments and other emergency treatment failed to save her life.

He characterized her death as a "tragedy," and declared he would advocate federal and state laws requiring that such tablets be sold only on physician's prescription and not in package form as at present.

U.S. Bankers Ready to Aid Defense

The nation's bankers are now as capable of executing the government's program for defense as they were in -1917 for its program of offense.

So Robert M. Hanes, president of the American Bankers' Association, told delegates at annual convention of the American Institute of Banking at Hotel Statler today.

"I thoroughly agree that this country should be prepared to defend itself against any attack," Hanes declared.

"We should spare no pains, no money to the end that our country is impregnable. The banking system of the nation is prepared to help in every way to finance any defense program which the Congress may initiate."

Hanes, president of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., Winston-Salem, N. C., said it did not seem likely "that this nation will become militarily involved" in the war, nor, he added "is there any reason to fear the ability of the free enterprise order to serve the country's needs in any emergency."

"But," he continued, "it is important to be on guard against war-scare hysteria under which the surrender of more powers over the life of the people to the federal government may be undertaken."

Hanes told the convention that in the last war the American Bankers' Association and the American Institute of Banking "adjusted their activities to the national needs and the needs of the banks.

"The banks met all the demands for credit made upon them. In a large way they assisted the government in the financing of the war.

"They acted as its agents in the sale of government bonds; they invested themselves, urged their customers and others to buy bonds; and devised means for making this convenient for the public."

PROBATION FOR 4 IN TAX CASE

Contributions made to political "committees" caused alleged income tax deficits which brought indictments against four contractors on state projects, their counsel admitted today in federal court.

All four were placed on probation for one year after they had changed their not guilty pleas of three weeks ago and pleaded guilty today to the indictment charges of attempting to evade income taxes of a corporation.

Named in one indictment were Joseph R. Perini of Boston and Louis R. Perini of Wellesley as officials of B. Perini & Sons, Inc., of Framingham. This alleged atempted tax evasion was for $11,291.32 in 1936.

A second indictment named the two Perinis and Clement J. Maney of Brookline and Joseph F. Carven of Boston as officials of the Two Co., Inc., charged with attempted evasion of $11,781.08 in 1936 taxes.

CHANGE PLEAS

When the four contractors came into court today before Judge George C. Sweeney, they switched their pleas to guilty after an attempt to plead nolo had failed.

Atty. Bartholomew A. Brickley, counsel for the defendants, then addreased the court and said:

"These cases arise as a result of contributions made to political committees by the companies of which these men are officers.

"There is no charge that in any way these men are involved personally. They are before this court solely because of the unforutnate manner in which their companies made these contributions.

"Their only violation of the law —if violation there was—results from two facts:

PAY TAXES, PENALTIES

"First, the failure on the part of the companies to properly reflect facts in their books.

"Second, under the statutes, officers of a corporation are made responsible for the filing of accurate and correct returns.

"These men are not of the type who appear before any court, criminal or civil. Because of the fact that it may be that they have technically violated the law and because of the great expense and trouble which will result from prolonged litigation, I have advised them to plead guilty to the charges brought and depend upon the judgment of this court.

"To this suggestion they have reluctantly acquiesced and for disposition."

According to Asst. U. S. Atty. Henry M. Leen, the men already have paid teh taxes and penalties, all totaling more tha n$40,000.

THE SHIRT THAT WON FAME THROUGH Comparison WITH $3.50 SHIRTS FROM 9 OTHER LARGE CITIES

You may remember. Last May we bought $3.50 shirts in nine large cities from coast to coast. We tested them! Tore them! Mauled them! Washed them! We had our chemist make fabric counts, washing tests, strength tests and goodness knows what else. Probably no other shirts in history ever received such an unmerciful mangling. You may remember how the Filene $3.50 shirt stood out by comparison with the other nine. How, after receiving the same series of stresses and strains, it held up long after the others gave up the ghost. These are duplicates of that shirt that became famous by comparison. Shirts that were made right here in New England of fine quality English broadcloth imported from Hindle & Co. of London . . . shirts that are even greater values today than they were then.

Beginning WEDNESDAY at 9:30 (not today)—In the AIR-CONDITIONED MEN'S STORE In time for Father's Day (June 16)

You who have worn these shirts need read no further. But for you who haven't, a word may be necessary as to WHY they usually cost more—and are worth it. First: A finer broadcloth is used (2x2), lustrous and woven of exceptionally fine Egyptian cotton. Second, the cloth is woven by perhaps the leader among fine weavers of broadcloth in England. Third, they're tailored in New England, cut with extreme care to insure comfort, better fit and appearance—GUARANTEED not to shrink below the marked size. Fourth, extra tailoring refinements—French front, flare-tails, self-facings, earmarks of good shirts. That's why they sell here regularly at $3.50—and are worth $3.50. Come Wednesday, save $1.31 on each. In white only—collar attached style, 14 to 18; neckband style 14 to 17, sleeve 32 to 35, $2.19. Write or phone HUBbard 4250 till 9 P. M. Courtroom Cleared As Girl, 15, Testifies

LAWRENCE, June 4 — Miss Mary Walker, 15-year-old Haverhill high school freshman, resumed the stand in superior court here today in a recital of her alleged relations with three prominent Haverhill men, all charged with a serious offense. All save attorneys and witnesses were excluded from the courtroom.

The three, who waived jury trial in favor of a determination of the case by Judge Allen Buttrick of Lancaster, are Aldermen George F. Romsey, 53, Supt. of Streets Elmore H. Prescott, 39, and Alfred C. Richardson, a mechanic employed by the street department. Each of the three is married.

There are three counts in the indictments against Prescott and Richardson and two against Ramsey. At the opening, Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg said Prescott was first to become intimate with the girl in the spring of 1939 and continuing until September of that year. About June 15 of last year, he said, Richardson became intimate with her and this association continued until October. Ramsey came into the picture in the latter part of July, 1939, Cregg maintained. The three men were seen driving about with the girl at different times, he said.

The girl disappeared from Haverhill on Jan. 9, after drawing $300 from a Haverhill bank and, about five weeks later, was located in a New York hotel and brought home. As the result of what she told her father, Winfred V. Walker, a mechanic in the street department, complaints were brought against the trio.

Divorce Suit Airs Dance, Beano Woes

The troubles of a dancing husband and a beano-playing wife were being summed up today in final arguments in Middlesex Probate Court.

It was the case of Postal Worker Albert Bretton, 43, who is fighting a separate support suit by his wife, Aileen M. Bretton of Medford.

Bretton on the stand admitted that he sought out dance halls to dance with other women, but he said he had adopted the practice as a solace to his hurt feelings.

Mrs. Bretton, he testified, hurt his feelings when she went into periods of silence. Not only that, he said, his wife always wanted to go out and sometimes cleared off the table before he had finished his meals.

He denied Mrs Bretton's charges that he had made improper advances to her sister, Margaret O'Brien, of Woburn, an employe of the Motor Vehicle Registry.

The sister, he stated, made improper advances to him.

Introduced was a nerve clinic report which stated Mrs. Bretton had a "hankering" for beano.

Mrs. Bretton on the other hand charged it was her husband who started the "won't speak sprees." She testified he resorted to domestic silence as an excuse to escape her society and seek that of other women.

Since their marriage in 1934, Bretton never contributed to her support, bought her clothes, paid the doctor bills or footed the household expenses, she testified.

FOUR PISTOLS STOLEN FROM ARMORY HERE

Four .45 caliber automatic pistols were stolen May 22 from Commonwealth Armory annex on Commonwealth ave., Back Bay, it was revealed today in the wake of announcement by National Guard officials that special guards have been posted at 51 armories throughout the State.

The four pistols were taken by thieves well acquainted with Commonwealth Armory routine, police said, in pointing out that a time for the break was chosen when the watchman was in another part of the building.

The guns had been transferred to new cases and bars had not been placed over the windows of the room. Two of the windows were broken, the cases smashed.

Four days after the break, Hugh A. Pudsey, federal caretaker of the building said, 14 more automatics and 48 rifles were delivered to the armory. Boston police detectives, William Jennings and John Hancotte, and federal officers were assigned to the case.

Armories were ordered placed under constant guard and closed to the public by Adjt.-Gen. Edgar C. Erickson at the direction of Gov. Saltonstall.

Commanders of each National Guard unit were notified to assign men to guard duty.

The order read:

"During the entire 24 hours, the entrance to each armory must be kept locked and no one will be allowed to enter the armory except national guardsmen."

Prospective recruits will be permitted to enter the armories only when National Guard units are at drill. Military custodians were directed to arrange for an hourly contact by telephone between armory guards and local police departments during night hours.

CHURCHILL ADMITS DEFEAT

sion "of our military strength" and that this expansion "had not been proceeding as fast as we had hoped." "The best we had to give had gone to the B. E. F." he admitted.

He declared Britain would "reconstitute and build up the B. E. F. once again under its gallant commander-in-chief, Lord Gort."

Expressing belief that Britain in a few months would "overtake this serious loss," he warned:

"Our thankfulnes at the escape of our army must not blind us to the fact that what has happened is a colossal military disaster."

Churchill told in detail the assistance given by the French and British navies in the evacuation and the heroic role played by volunteer fishermen, yachtsmen and rivermen in bringing the Allied armies to safety.

NOW SCENE CLEARS

"The army carried on day and night with little or no rest," he said.

"The navy made trip after trip, always bringing men out . . . the numbers brought back are the measure of the courage of all concerned . . .

"Hospital ships brought off many thousands of wounded and were the special target of Nazi bombs. Our air force brought into use part of the main metropolitan strength and struck at the German fighters and bombers.

"Now the scene is clear.

"The crash and thunder have momentarily died away.

"A miracle of deliverance has been achieved by valor, perfect discipline, faultless service and the resource and skill of all.

"The enemy was thrown back. The air force inflicted losses of four to one.

$35,000 RESCUED

"One thousand ships carried over 335,000 Britons and Frenchmen off those shores and back to their native lands out of the jaws of death.

"We must be most careful not to assign to this deliverance the attributes of victory.

"Wars are not won by evacuation, but there was a victory inside of this deliverance which should be noted. It was gained by the air force.

"This was a great trial of strength between the British and German air forces. The German air force tried hard and was beaten back. We got our army away.

"Thankfulness over the escape of our army must not blind us to the fact that what has happened is a colossal military disaster.

"In the meantime, we must put the state of defenses of this island in high preparedness.

DEFEND TO DEATH

"The British and the French will defend to the death their native soil.

"We shall go on to the end.

"We shall fight in France. We shall fight on the seas and oceans. We shall fight with growing confidence and growing ectrength in the air.

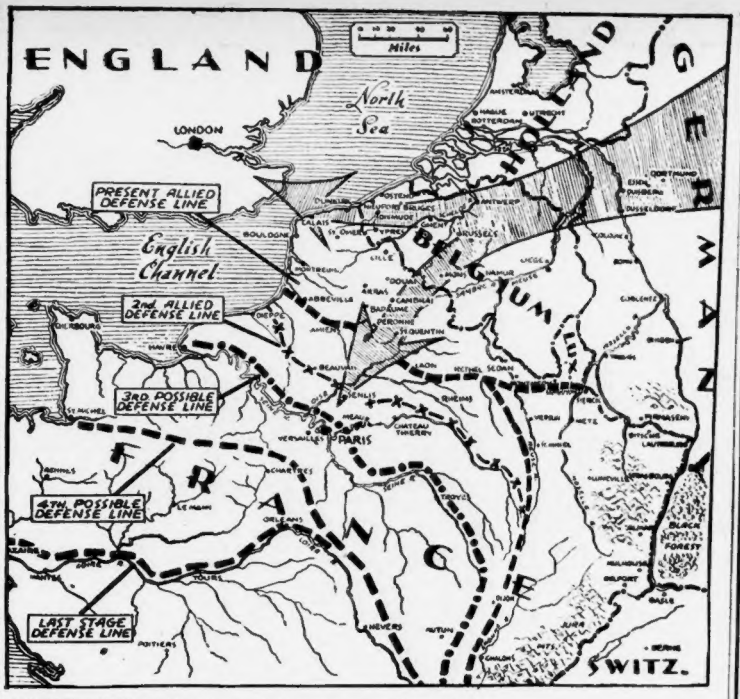
"We shall defend our island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches. We shall fight on the landing grounds. We shall fight in the fields and streets and in the hills."

"We shall never surrender and even if, which I do not for a moment believe, this island or even a part of it is subjugated and starving, then our empire across seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, will carry on the struggle until in God's name the new world and in all its strength and might sets forth to the rescue and liberation of the old."

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today Britain was prepared to enter into fully normal relations with Soviet Russia.

Butler added he hoped to be able to reply tomorrow when diplomatic representation by an ambassador in Moscow would be resumed.

The British ambassador to Russia, Sir William Seeds, arrived in London Jan. 10 on leave from his post and has not returned.



WHERE'LL THE BLOW FALL?—With the Germans in position for a drive on Paris or London, bombing of the French capital yesterday tends to indicate Hitler will first attempt to mop up France. To meet this threat, the French today strengthened defense lines (as shown here).

Leopold Writes F.D.

By LOUIS LOCHNER

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY, June 4 (AP)—John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Belgium, disclosed today that President Roosevelt, from a personal letter written him by King Leopold III of the Belgians, knows the inside story of the King's capitulation to the Germans.

Cudahy visited Leopold Sunday for two hours at the castle assigned him by the German army.

Here, the defeated King handed Cudahy the letter for President Roosevelt in which the monarch told his side of the story.

Cudahy declined to comment on the letter or the status of King Leopold. The American ambassador is out of touch with the world, living on an island as it were. He has contact with neither Washington nor Berlin.

FOOD FOR 50 DAYS

Still, he sticks to his post, for he feels he has big work to do with the Red Cross. He realizes Belgium has food for only 50 more days, assuming the Germans do not requisition it.

Realizing that Leopold's dramatic story had never been told, we made a detour of more than 100 miles from France into Brussels.

Since Cudahy felt it incompatible with his position to comment, an intimate friend of the royal family was interviewed. His account placed Leopold in a new light.

This friend said that the King, lacking what he considered proper aid from the British and French, although the British admiral, Sir Roger Keyes, as liaison officer, was with him and saw the Belgian army's plight, and seeing 500,000 Belgian civilians were mingled with his troops and threatened with destruction, had to decide between the welfare of his people and consideration of his prestige.

REFUSED TO FLEE

According to Leopold's friend, Hubert Pierlot, premier of Belgium, and other cabinet members urged the King to flee with them when they saw the helplessness of the Belgium position.

Leopold proudly replied:

"Regardless of what my fate may be, I shall stay with my Belgian army. Regardless of what may happen to my Belgian people, I shall go back to them."

Thereupon the cabinet members, according to this friend, fled to a safe place (Paris) and from there "threw mud at their sovereign after taking the Belgian treasury with them."

The Belgian cabinet and Parliament in exile "disowned" Leopold.—Editor's note.

Presumably it was at this nerve center of French military aviation that United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt was lunching with French officials when a dud fell only six feet away.

BRITISH MEET RAIDERS

Across the English channel British pursuit planes sped out to sea last night to meet approaching German raiders. There was no air raid alarm.

The British, hailing the rescue of the Allied forces from Dunkirk as the most extensive and difficult combined operation in naval history, acknowledged the loss of six destroyers and 23 minor war vessels out of a great armada of 887 naval and private craft participating in the operations. The paddle minesweeper Medway Queen reached port after having been given up for lost. Loss of 18 merchant vessels was announced.

King George VI praised the "bravery shown by the three services and the merchant navy" in turning the withdrawal from "disaster into triumph."

The Germans said the successful withdrawal of which the British spoke was, in fact, a confused, costly retreat. They estimated they had taken 330,000 British and French prisoners in Flanders.

The French high command said the Germans were rushing up strong reinforcements along the right bank of the Aisne and "tightening contact with our posts west of the Saar."

INTO HEART OF FRANCE

To military men this all pointed to a tremendous drive soon toward the heart of France.

Some quarters in Berlin pictured the stabs at the Western Front, the unrelenting pursuit of the Allies at Dunkirk and the air forays into France as correlated maneuvers to keep the Allies guessing as to just where Hitler would strike next.

While getting set for the next blow, Germany took extraordinary steps in an effort to convince the United States that she has no desire to see the Western Hemisphere involved in the war and that she is taking unusual measures to avoid even accidental affront to America.

The foreign office formally warned the governments of the United States, Mexico and Panama that "British agents" have been dispatched to Central America in large numbers to manufacture "evidence" which would create an impression the Reich is launching an ambitious program to weaken America.

The three American nations were advised that the British agents would spread false stories of German machinations in Mexico and Nazi plots to sabotage the Panama canal.

WARNED ABOUT LINERS

At the same time Germany repeated warnings of alleged British plans to sink the United States liners President Roosevelt, Washington and Manhattan under circumstances which would make the Germans appear guilty. The liners are engaged in bringing American citizens home from the European war zone.

The emphasis placed on the warnings made it appear to Germans that the Reich is more worried over the possibilities of "enemy intrigue" than over opposition on the battlefield.

The recent operations of the Nazi air force over France, including the raid on the Paris area and weekend bombings of industrial centers in the Rhone valley, increased the average German's confidence in the striking power of this arm of the service.

1,200,000 PRISONERS

Some quarters, including the German radio, figured the total number of prisoners captured at 1,200,000 by including the members of the capitulated Dutch and Belgian armies.

Approximately 400,000 Dutch soldiers were taken prisoners, these sources said, though most of these are being released on promise not to bear arms again against the Reich.

About 500,000 Belgians who laid down their arms are still being herded toward prison camps and concentration points, it was said, with their ultimate disposition still unannounced. Even King Leopold is still a prisoner with special status, the Germans explained.

The great number of Allied troops captured was acclaimed as an all-time record for a single military action.

During the World War Von Hindenburg captured 93,000 Russians at Tannenberg, it was recalled—a feat which stood as the German record until Adolf Hitler's army made prisoners of 170,000 Poles last fall at Kutno.

bombardment of Marseille and the Rhone valley.

Off Marseille, one English ship had been sunk and a French tanker burned and beached. A small oil depot was bombed and was still ablaze, but otherwise the port was undamaged.

The main railway line through the Rhone was cut by a direct hit, but the French repaired it within four hours and only one train was delayed. This is indicative of the immense preparations the French have made to repair the damage of air bombers.

Italy O.K.'s War Laws, No Conflict Date Set

ROME, June 4 (AP)—Premier Mussolini's Cabinet approved today a series of measures to prepare the nation for war, but left unanswered the question when Italy would enter the European conflict at Germany's side.

In an anxiously awaited 90-minute session, with Il Duce presiding, the ministers moved to extend war preparations to Italy's African empire, to strengthen the navy and tighten discipline in the war industries.

But Italy's position as a non-belligerent ally of Germany remained unchanged by the meeting, to which the world had looked for days for a clue to Il Duce's next move.

The measure dealing with war industries provided punishment for infractions of discipline which would interfere with output.

The cabinet voted additional funds for warship construction but the amount was not disclosed.

Provision also was made for the admission of more student officers to the Royal Naval Academy.

Regulations restricting employment of women in public services were rescinded by a measure intended to allow them to replace men called to arms.

Washington Silent On F. D. Plea Report

WASHINGTON, June 4 (INS)—There was no confirmation in Washington early today of a Budapest report that President Roosevelt has sent a new peace appeal to Italian Premier Mussolini.

White House spokesmen were unavailable, due to the early hour. A diplomatic official said that to his knowledge there had been no new U. S. appeal to cause Mussolini to cancel his speech to the Fascist Grand Council, as reported from Budapest.

Reports have circulated in Washington that Mr. Roosevelt has maintained periodic contacts with Mussolini since sending Il Duce a peace note by U. S. Ambassador to Rome William Phillips about a month ago, but they are unconfirmed.

F. D. Peace Plea Halts Duce War Move, Report

LONDON, June 4 (INS)—A Budapest dispatch to the London Daily Express said today that Premier Mussolini has cancelled his scheduled speech to the Fascist grand council following a new appeal from President Roosevelt, according to unconfirmed reports from Rome.

According to the dispatch, Il Duce again has cancelled his decision regarding Italian participation in the European war.

18 British Ships Sunk In One Week

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—Authoritative British sources announced today that 18 ships, of a total of 45,225 tons, were sunk by German action in the week ending May 26.

The total included 10 British ships of a total of 10,913 tons, it was said, four Allied vessels of 12,999 tons and four neutral ships of 21,313 tons. The losses included the hospital ships Brighton and Maid of Kent, bombed and sunk in Dieppe harbor.

British Push Drive Against Fascists

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—The Government pressed its roundup of British Fascists throughout the nation today, arresting two at Canterbury, from 30 to 40 at Manchester, including several women, one on the Isle of Wight, three at Lowestoft and one at Blackpool.

New Nazi Attack Wrecks Narvik

STOCKHOLM, June 4 (INS)—The Norwegian port of Narvik, captured by British and Norwegian troops, is a mass of smoking ruins as the result of a German air bombardment Sunday, it was learned in Stockholm today.

Eleven German planes launched the attack, dropping a number of incendiary bombs in the southern part of the town.

Banks, hotels and the postoffice were destroyed and the main street reduced to shambles. Damages were estimated at several million kroner.

British fighters went aloft and engaged the bombers, shooting several down into the sea.

Urge Americans Enlist in War

NEW HAVEN, June 4 — Pres. Charles Seymour of Yale University today urged that Americans be allowed to enlist in French and British armed forces.

"The triumph of Germany would not merely threaten our material security, but would endanger the highest ideals of mankind," Dr. Seymour told the New Haven Rotary Club.

A close friend of the late President Woodrow Wilson, Seymour said that America, in this struggle for human freedom, ought to contribute as far as our resources permit.

He suggested America refuse exports to world powers which are obviously aggressive, hasten manufacture of planes for the French and British, open extensive credits to them and even make them free subsidies, and permit enlistment.

British Air Bomber Destroyed by Cable

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—A heavy British bomber was destroyed when it collided with a barrage balloon cable over the east coast last night, the air ministry announced today.

Only one of the crew was saved, the air ministry said.

'No Raid Reprisals,' Order Allied Chiefs

TARGET PRACTICE

PARIS, June 4 (AP)—The government acknowledged today that airdromes, factories and railways had been damaged in the German air raid on Paris yesterday, and authorized sources said that in view of this evidence the bombing was aimed at military objectives the French did not feel justified in reprisals for Civilian casualties.

Military officials said that while bombs had been dropped in "haphazard fashion," killing 45 civilians and wounding 200, it appeared there had been no "deliberate attack on the city itself."

Therefore, it was said, the French feel that while they can now "justifiably" attack factories and military objectives around Berlin, attacks on German civilians are not called for.

BLOW FOR BLOW

It was explained that France had not alttered her original policy of giving "blow fo blow" in reply to German bombings, and that if the Germans "ever deliberately attack an open city the French will feel free to strike back in kind.

Shortly before the air ministry acknowledged the damage to military objectives, the scarred capital was rocked anew by the boom of anti-aircraft guns going into action to drive off German planes which appeared over the suburbs at about 9 a. m.

No bombs were dropped, but residents were kept in a state of anxiety by the explosion of several time bombs loosed in yesterday's raid.

LULL BEFORE STORM

There were no immediate reports of additional casualties from these blasts.

The situation on the war front was described by the high command as quiet on all sectors except at Dunkirk, where the evacuation of the Allied rearguards was said to be proceeding "despite ever increasing difficulties."

The possibility that the inactivity along the Somme-Aisne front was only the lull before the storm was indicated, however, by reports of German troop concentrations behind their lines in northern France.

'Keep Out of War' Bloc in Washington

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 4.—A Democratic "keep us out of war" bloc was being formed in the Senate today to oppose American involvement in the European holocaust.

The bloc, being organized under the leadership of Sen. Bennett Clark (Missouri), may have far-reaching effect on the 1940 presidential election.

Its members are pledged to do everything within their power to keep the United States out of Europe's war, even to the extent of carrying their campaign into the coming pro-tem of contest.

Organization of the bloc was continued by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, a dark horse possibility for the Democratic presidential nomination in event President Roosevelt does not seek a third term. Asked whether he was joining the bloc, Wheeler said:

"Yes. Senator Clark is calling a meeting of Democratic Senators, who oppose the United States being dragged into Europe's wars. I think it is high time such a meeting was called.

"Some of us Democrats feel that Congress should grant no more emergency war powers to the President. We feel, if there is an emergency, then Congress ought to stay in continuous session and pass upon each emergency as it arises, just as it is our duty under the Constitution of the United States.

"All of us are in favor of building our national defense, but we can't build our national defense if at the same time we give our planes and warships to the Allies.

"We feel it is our duty to do everything possible to keep our country out of war and to prevent the enactment of anything that will tend to drag our country into war."

There are deep political implications in the creation of the anti-war bloc. For one thing, the members are certain to make the anti-war issue into the Democratic convention at Chicago by demanding that the party go on record as unalterably opposed to American participation in the war, even if the Allies are being crushed.

Congress Acts to Bar Nazis From Americas

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—Democrats and Republicans alike supported the Administration today in an effort to post a firm "keep out" sign, obviously aimed at Germany, on the possessions of other foreign powers in this hemisphere.

Legislation to clarify any doubts about American policy on that point was introduced yesterday by Chairman Pittman (D.) of Nevada, of the Senate foreign relations committee and Chairman Bloom (D.) of New York, of the House foreign affairs committee. Bloom told reporters that the bill was backed by Secretary Hull.

The House committee was called together to approve the bill quickly today. Even before it met, Rep. Fish of New York, the ranking Republican member, announced his support.

Bolstering the Monroe Doctrine by which President James Monroe in 1823 declared the American continents closed to future colonization by any European powers, the legislation would commit the United States definitely against any effort by Germany should it defeat the Allies—to claim title to British, French, Dutch or Danish possessions in the new world.

WARNING IS GIVEN

It declared that the United States "would not recognize any transfer and would not acquiesce in any attempt to transfer any geographical region of the western hemisphere from one non-American power to another non-American power." It adds:

"If such a transfer or attempt to transfer should appear likely, the United States shall, in addition to other measures, immediately consult with other American republics to determine upon steps which should be taken to safeguard their common interests."

OPPOSE ADJOURNMENT

Some lawmakers voiced concern over current reports of "fifth column" activity in South America. Senator Connally (D. of Texas) suggested yesterday that if infiltration was occurring, the United States should order warships to aid the republics endangered.

Administration sources indicated, however, that any action taken would be in collaboration with other Latin American nations.

House Republicans, meanwhile voiced a unanimous demand that Congress abandon its intention to adjourn late this month and stay in session "as long as the interests of the country require."

Swiss May Build Food Storage Bins

BERNE (AP)—Landlocked Switzerland has to import 90,000 tons of foodstuffs over a four months' period, but has storage space available for only 40,000 tons. Much of the space is available only in frontier regions, so the federal government has been considering plans to subsidize building warehouses for food stores in central Switzerland, where an invader would have to cross many a snow-covered mountain range before reaching them.

U. S. Refugee Liner Passes Gibraltar

ABOARD S. S. Manhattan, June 4 (AP)—For the first time the British contraband control began operating, the United States liner Manhattan passed Gibraltar today, westbound, without being halted. A picket boat merely halted the ship.

The Manhattan sailed from Genoa Sunday with 2200 passengers, most of them Americans, fleeing from the perils of war in Europe.

U. S. War Planes Reach Canada

HOULTON, Me., June 4 (AP)—A fleet of trucks assembled at Houlton's airport early today to tow into belligerent Canada 34 little sport-model planes going to France for war service.

The three-seaters, said by informed Canadian sources to be destined for use as the "eyes" of French artillerymen, were to be hauled, tail first, to adjacent Woodstock, N. B., then flown to Halifax, N. S., for ocean shipment. The neutrality law forbids flying planes over the border.

Mrs. Gertrude Love, Boston, was at the controls of one of the planes when it arrived here yesterday.

The letters were despatched by Mrs. John H. Kimball, chairman of the women's advisory committee for the New York World's Fair of 1940, and former president of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs

FURNISH MODEL HOMES

This concern has also completely furnished the two new FHA model houses on the exposition grounds. In one of which the Massachusetts family will live, with all expenses paid, during the week's stay.

"I Talked with God"

(Yes, I Did—Actually and Literally)

and as a result of that little talk with God some ten years ago, a strange Power came into my life. After 42 years of horrible, sickening, dismal failure and despair, everything took on a brighter hue. It's fascinating to talk with God, and it can be done very easily once you learn how. And when you do, well, there will come into your life the same dynamic Power which came into mine. The shackles of defeat which had bound me for years went a-shimmering — and now? — well—I own control of the largest circulating daily newspaper in my County, I own the largest office building in my City, I drive a beautiful limousine, I own my own home which has a lovely pipe organ in it, and my family are abundantly provided for after I'm gone. And all this has been made possible because one day, ten years ago, I talked with God, Actually and literally talked with God.

You, too, may experience that strange Power which comes from talking with God, and when you do, if there is poverty, unrest, unhappiness, ill-health or despair in your life, well—this same God-Power is able to do for you what it did to me. No matter how useless or helpless your life seems to be—all this can be changed. For this is not a human power I'm talking about—it's a God-Power, and, of course, there can be no limitations to the God-Power, can there? Would you like to know how you too may talk with God? Would you like to know how this God-Power may come into your life as it came into mine? Then write a letter or post-card to Dr. Frank B. Robinson, Dept. 424, Moscow, Idaho, and full particulars of this strange Teaching will be sent you free of charge. But write now—while you are in the mood. It only costs one cent to find out, and this might easily be the best one cent you have ever spent. It may sound unbelievable — but it's true or I wouldn't tell you it was. Advt. HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

WORCESTER SHERIFF, 2 DEPUTIES ON TRIAL

WORCESTER, June 4—In the same courtroom where he served for the last eight years, Sheriff Oscar Rocheleau, 63, today heard accusations of bribery and the charge that he took bonuses from his deputies.

On trial before the same locked-up jury, in one of the most unusual trials in the Commonwealth's history, were two of his deputies, Hugo N. Peterson and Herbert S. Buss.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Alfred B. Cenedella began his address to the jury on the opening of court in a setting which saw deputy sheriffs from other counties brought in to act as court officers.

Eight out of nine indictments returned by the grand jury are being tried. The ninth concerns alleged collections made from special deputy sheriffs at the Barre wool strike last year. The indictments carry a total of 143 counts against Sheriff Rocheleau and 71 counts against his two assistants, Peterson and Buss.

All three defendants are charged with conspiracy of bribery, conspiracy to take bribes and conspiracy. Before the jury was chosen, the state used up 30 of its 36 challenges while the defense used up 32.

Hero Praised in Futile Rescue Try

BEDFORD, N. H., June 4—A Manchester youth, John Thorton, was praised today for his heroism in plunging fully clothed into Riddle Spring Brook in an attempt to save an 11-year-old boy from drowning.

The child, Leon Panenton, was dead, however, when pulled from the water. Police and firemen worked over his body with an inhalator in vain.

Wary Council Spurns Gift

The city of Boston isn't taking a pig in a poke. It also wants whole hog or none.

So it turned out when members of the City Council turned down the offer of North End land owned by the Bennett estate and offered by Cong. George Holden Tinkham for playground purposes.

When the council learned that the taxes had been unpaid for three years members voted to turn down Mayor Tobin's offer for its acceptance.

Warned that the offer might be withdrawn, the council then voted an order asking the heirs whether or not they would pay up the taxes before the city took over the property. The tract is located at Charter st. and Vernon st.

Separate Lives For Key Quads

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 4—Four separate queens replaced four of a kind today as the Keys quadruplets celebrated their 25th birthday—their last together—at a family picnic.

For the first time, Oklahoma's famous Key sisters—the first quadruplets known to have reached maturity—emerged as separate individuals when they appeared in individual clothes.

Constant companions since their birth in Hollis, Okla., the four sisters have dressed alike and attended the same schools. But Mona will be married June 18 to Robert W. Fowler, Oklahoma City accountant. Leota, Mary and Roberta will look for jobs as schoolteachers.

Julie Brown Colt To Wed Soup Heir

Mrs. Julie Brown Colt, gay, red-headed young divorcee whose gilded automobile dazzled Cape Cod folk a few summers ago, stirred the social broth with a new surprise today.

From Hollywood came the announcement that the former wife of Samuel Colt Jr., of the firearms family, announced her engagement to John Deming Campbell, heir to the soup millions.

The 21-year-old vivacious beauty only a few short weeks ago had intimated strongly that she might take advantage of Leap Year and propose to Winthrop Rockefeller Jr., son of John D. Jr. with whom her name had been romantically linked for some time.

The bride-to-be announced the engagement at a reception given by the Marquise Rose Dudu Belest of Paris and said the nuptials would take place in Washington D. C. July 4 unless she...

CAMPBELL ONLY 22

Campbell 22 is the son of Ann Hanna De Muth and Mrs. Margaret Watson Deming Campbell of Evanston Ill. who is present husband Dana B. Inc. Campbell is the son of the soup fortune founder.

Mrs. Colt is the daughter of Atty. and Mrs. Philip Marshall Brown of Washington. The announcement was to have been made this week, she said, but Campbell has been called to Seattle by the illness of his grandmother, Mrs. Frank L. Deming.

Rumors of an impending marriage between Mrs. Colt and Rockefeller sprung up after she dashed by plane to Los Angeles to meet him in San Francisco to be near him for two days on his recent trip to the west coast.

LEAP YEAR HINT

Questioned about the rumors young Rockefeller said enigmatically:

"A Leap Year 'no' from a man may mean 'not yet' or whatever else it may signify from someone who hasn't received a proposal."

At her Beverly Hills home, Julie when questioned by reporters putted her admiration for "Rocky," indicated at the time she might take advantage of Leap Year.

Referring to her plane dash, she said:

"We exchange phone calls whenever we're feeling lonely."

Julie was the talk of Cape Cod when she appeared in a gilded car with chromium gadgets and a fire bell.

Berry Urges Employer Link

Maj. George L. Berry, International president of the Printing, Pressmen and Assistants Union of North America called for a rededication of good will between employer and employe during an address before Boston Printing Pressmen Unions at the Hotel Bradford.

He defended a strong alliance between investor, management and organized labor, declaring such a relationship was not monopolistic.

It is preferable, he said, to a "loose-jointed non-co-operative condition in which turmoil is the order of the day, from which turmoil the whole democratic structure is weakened."

POLICE CLUBS SAVE PAIR AFTER CHASE

Two Roxbury youths, seized after a stolen car chase, and protected from enraged spectators by police clubs, were questioned today in a lineup at headquarters concerning several recent auto thefts.

With a third youth, who escaped, the pair were riding in a high-powered auto in Moreland st., Roxbury, when first sighted by officers in a cruiser from the Dudley st. station.

At breakneck speed the chase swept across Blue Hill ave., endangering hundreds of persons, and zigzagged through traffic. Soon another police car, its siren wailing, took up the pursuit.

The fugitive machine crashed into the rear of an auto owned by Mrs. Katherine Morrison in front of her Yeomans st. home. So great was the force of collision that the Morrison car was driven forward 50 feet into an auto owned by Henry Friedland of Glenway st., Dorchester.

Angry neighbors gathered quickly and threatened to beat the two youths who were taken in custody. The pair were led away by the officers and held for today's lineup session.

I understand that, although he's just joined the ambulance corps, Bob wants to produce the picture himself in France.

"Brother Orchid," adapted from Richard Connell's story that appeared in a national magazine, is not entirely new to a portion of the Hub's playgoers. Boston College's drama organization presented it this past season with considerable success.

In Earl Baldwin's screen adaptation Hollywood glamour is introduced by a new character not present in the B. C. cast. She is Flo, a hat check girl in a swank night spot and a member of "Little John" Sarto's (Robinson) gang who took a good tip and before long owned the night club. Ann Sothern plays her to the hilt, we are assured.

Robinson, head of the John Sarto Protective Agency, gets his feelings hurt when his henchmen "rub out" a member of a rival gang without even sending him a memo. More than that, they have the bad taste to do the erasing job in Molly Madigan's Cafe, where they serve his favorite corn beef and cabbage, and the police close the place.

So he decides to quit the rackets and go gunning for culture 'round the world. A sucker for anything that smacks of "class" he soon parts with his bank-roll in exchange for pseudo-antiques. Figuring to recoup his losses, he goes home to his erstwhile "mob" and finds he doesn't live there any more.

Humphrey Bogart meanwhile had "taken over". But Robinson, with "Little Orchid Annie's" help, teaches the double-crossing Bogart and the other mobsters a lesson or two in "culture."

Ralph Bellamy again plays a gullible and wealthy rancher, a role he's played in his past five pictures.

Allen Jenkins and Donald Crisp, Granville Bates and Paul Guilfoyle are other well-known actors in supporting roles. Lloyd Bacon directed.

The second feature will be "Flight Angels," an adventurous comedy describing the plight of an ace pilot who is forced to teach a group of girls how to become airline hostesses. Dennis Morgan plays the aviator and Virginia Bruce, the gorgeous airline hostess with whom he falls in love. Lewis Seiler directed this Warners film.

SAD NEWS—Ann Sothern and Edward G. Robinson experience an anxious moment in this scene from "Brother Orchid," opening Thursday at the Met.

Gayety Scores With Vice Film

Yesterday's headlines form the basis for this week's film attraction at the Gayety Theater—"Gambling With Souls." The picture, featuring Bryant Washburn, Martha Chapin, Florence Dudley and others, is a sensational expose of the vice racket. It shows how a young matron's love of luxury leads her into the underworld.

The co-feature, "Convicted Woman," stars Rochelle Hudson in the title role.

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

AMERICA is confronted at this time not by one, but by TWO grave dangers.

First is the danger that we MAY become involved in another foreign war.

SENATOR JOSH LEE
Sponsors Bill to Draft People's Money

But this is a calamity that MAY NOT occur.

The people are NOT willing that America should go into Europe's war, and they ARE willing to support any measures of preparedness necessary to keep Europe's war out of America.

Much more immediate, and far less heeded, is the danger that our system of free government and free enterprise may be subverted—subverted not by the known enemies of our institutions, but by professed friends and guardians of these institutions, through the enactment in Congress of destructive legislation in the guise of "emergency" measures.

That the danger is real, and may suddenly become acute, is evidenced by the existence in Washington, READY FOR PASSAGE, of a bill which, almost over night, would convert the United States into a totalitarian nation.

This bill containing this overwhelming menace is the pending LEE BILL, a proposal to DRAFT ALL PERSONAL WEALTH in event either of ACTUAL WAR or of AN "EMERGENCY" due to the "IMMINENCE" of war.

This bill has actually been APPROVED by a committee of the United States Senate which heard testimony from only TWO witnesses, one of them being Senator Josh Lee, of Oklahoma, the sponsor of the bill.

The bill now rests upon the Senate's "consent calendar" and can be brought out for a vote AT ANY TIME.

Plainly, therefore, the Lee Bill has been slyly maneuvered into a position where, by means of pressure or of panicky demands, it might easily be hurried through both houses of Congress.

IF THE BILL WERE LAW, Congress would need only to declare war, or to declare merely that a war is "imminent," for the following things to happen:

The President would be AUTHORIZED and REQUESTED to cause a census of the ENTIRE NET WEALTH OF THE NATION to be taken.

Local "wealth appraisers" or "snoopers" would be appointed in every community.

Every person would be required to register his "gross wealth and financial obligations" with the appraisers, INCLUDING LIFE INSURANCE POLICIES AND THE EQUITY IN A FAMILY HOME.

Failure to disclose one's gross wealth and financial obligations would subject a citizen to A FINE up to $10,000, or to IMPRISONMENT, up to two years.

In such amount as the President should then decide, each citizen would have to "invest" his resources in 50-year government bonds which would pay not more than one per cent interest—subject to taxation.

Persons lacking CASH to buy the bonds must borrow from the government, giving notes secured by collateral, and MUST PAY THE GOVERNMENT SIX PER CENT INTEREST ON THE LOANS—getting back, of course, only ONE PER CENT in interest on the bonds.

Failure to buy one's full allotment of bonds within the period stipulated would be punishable by a fine UP TO $100,000 or by IMPRISONMENT UP TO FIVE YEARS.

IT IS OBVIOUS, from the foregoing outline, that the Lee Bill is simply a proposal for government confiscation of private property.

Once confiscated, the property would probably never be recoverable by the citizens to whom it honestly belonged.

The country would be made, permanently and irretrievably, a TOTALITARIAN country.

The government has no right, and should never have the power, to confiscate the people's property in order to engage in foreign wars.

The Lee Bill, which proposes such an infamous procedure, should be sunk into oblivion as a deadly peril to freedom and democracy in America.

On The Side

CONGRESS will probably keep going all Summer. Washington is the most beautiful city in the country, but the hottest at this time of year. When will somebody originate a system for air-conditioning cities. I think it could be done . . . Eighty-six is my best golf score. I wasn't such a bad golf player until I took lessons and began to read books on how to play golf . . . Night baseball doesn't appeal to me. That game is distinctly a day time sport. I have an idea after dark baseball is bad for the eyes of both players and spectators . . . None of the top flight feminine film stars got their start by winning a bathing beauty contest. But every bathing beauty contest winner is certain she is going to be a movie star.

IT WAS FRANCIS Bacon who said: "Wives are young men's mistresses, companions for middle age and old men's nurses" . . . Samuel Johnson observed: "A man in general is better pleased when he has a good dinner upon his table than when his wife talks Greek" . . . Asked the best way to keep a husband's love George Du Maurier said: "Feed the brute" . . . Lord Halifax wisely remarked: "A wife is to thank God her husband has faults. A husband without faults is a dangerous observer" . . . Aristotle advised: "It is fitting for the women to be married at about the age of 18, and the men at 37 or a little before" . . . R. L. Stevenson took the view: "If they only married when they fell in love, most people would die unwed" . . . Horace Greeley stated: "A widow of doubtful age will marry almost any sort of a white man."

GARY COOPER EXPLAINS NEW MUSTACHE
Insists It Is Own Idea, Not Wife's or Studio's

I KNOW of a business executive whose wife gave him a regulation barber chair for his birthday. So now he can be shaved at home before breakfast, same having been a life long ambition . . . Robert Taylor has grown a mustache. His wife having insisted on it. Gary Cooper has a similar hirsute adornment. But steadfastly maintains this is his own idea and was not grown on the orders of his studio or his wife . . . Speaking only as a regular reader of Broadway columns it would please me if the conductors of same would cease referring to persons of importance as "biggies."

IT MAKES no difference which side you sleep on, though many people think it is bad to sleep on the left side. "Rabbit" Maranville, the baseball player, a man of remarkable stamina and endurance, once stated he always slept face downward with his arms outstretched. He claimed this had much to do with his good health. Somebody should write a book on "How to Sleep."

-:- -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, June 4—It was a really thrilling experience Sunday afternoon to look out over the Court of Peace at the New York World's Fair and to see thousands and thousands of people gathered there for the program which the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union had arranged for the afternoon.

Very lovely music was given by the professional artists as well as the talent the garment workers, themselves, so ably develop.

Sen. Wagner gave an interesting address. I received more than I was able to give, however, for as I looked out over those faces and listened to them sing "The Star Spangled Banner," it seemed to me that my faith in the reality of our democracy was deepened.

When you feel something deeply, it is doubly hard to be articulate. Here stood a cross-section of our people from many lands, bringing us an infinite variety of backgrounds and cultures. However, in all of them one felt a confirmation of our determination to remain free and co-operatively to work out our destiny in the work.

SOME OF US forget occasionally that this co-operation for the good of all of us is the basis of our strength. A meeting, such as the one Sunday, reminds us how great is our power when we work together.

Our citizens come from many lands where sacrifice and oppression and resistance are nothing new. They have met these conditions with determination through generations, and this generation will find strength to meet whatever comes to us.

I get such a sense of power and solidarity from a meeting like Sunday's, that I can face the uncertainty of the future with far more strength and courage.

From the purely personal point of view, seeing again many of the people who are now leaders in their unions and whom I used to see more often when I lived in New York city, was a great pleasure.

I always feel like saying, "Thank you" to Mr. David Dubinsky for what he has accomplished through his leadership in this great union of organized workers.

Before this meeting I saw the WPA Contemporary Art and Craft Show at the fair. The crowds made it a little difficult to see all the things easily, and I felt a little guilty each time the kindly people tried to push aside other people who, like me, were trying to see the show. I enjoyed the exhibition very much, however, and thought it far superior to the one they had last year.

I also saw again the General Motors "Futurama." It is fresher in color, and all the little automobiles now actually run.

I returned to Washington Sunday night to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hayes and their family, who were here for the night. The President returned from his overnight boat trip, and we saw the newsreels, which have become to me a perfect horror.

ANN CORIO TO TRY NEW ROLES

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, June 4—Harry Hopkins, now living at the White House, helped the President draft the speech he made a few days ago . . . Ann Corio will turn to the legitimate theater. She's deciding between "Sailor Beware" and "No Time for Comedy," at the summer theater in Deer Lake, Pa. . . . Jimmy, the Stork Club's barber, has moved to Spinrad's . . . Edna St. Vincent Millay is back at her home in Austerlitz, N. Y., recovering from a spinal operation . . . Spivy, who entertained for years at Tony's, is building a new night club in a penthouse at 57th and Lex. She'll call it "The-Cow-on-the-Roof."

MUSIC DEPT.: Ira Gershwin has returned to N. Y., after a long absence in Hollywood. He told none of his friends about his arrival and went, quietly and unannounced, to a hotel . . . In less than an hour, however, he received a phone call from a reporter downstairs, requesting an interview . . . "I think you're wasting your time," was Ira's frank confession. "I really have nothing to say" . . . The reporter was persistent. "But there's nothing for me to say," Gershwin assured. "I've just arrived. I'm working with Kurt Weill for Moss Hart's show. I haven't even had time yet to look around New York and see if it's changed" . . . Gershwin soon discovered how N. Y. has changed. "I didn't want to ask you about yourself," the reporter told him. "I wanted some information about Oscar Levant."

ESTELLE TAYLOR

PERSONALS: Estelle Taylor, who leased her Hollywood home to Mr. and Mrs. George Jessel, has much faith in the success of their marriage. She listened to some of Jessel's friends reporting that George was buying for Lois all the things she wanted, things he felt would delight her . . . "Don't you think," Estelle was asked, "that George Jessel is losing his balance?" . . . "Only," she replied, "in the bank."

• • •

ETIQUETTE DEPT.: One of the seven defense coordinators recently appointed by the President expressed his delight. "But the boss," he said, referring to the Chief Executive, "is getting very formal. He calls up to tell of the appointment before the press tells it."

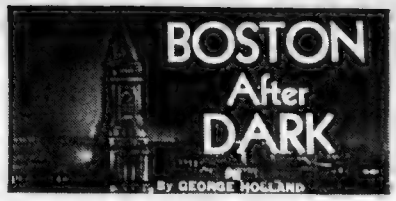
POLITICS DEPT.: The senior class at one of the oldest colleges in America recently voted as the one-most-likely-to-succeed a young man whose father is an important Presidential hopeful . . . This week the boy learned that he had failed in history.



TWO POLITICAL "IFS" in the local scene are heightening the confusion of the prognosticators who pride themselves in their ability to forecast the probable contention in major races . . . The "if" in the two most important Democratic contests, those for the governorship and the senatorship, is whether former Governor James M. Curley will run for office . . . And the "if" in Mr. Curley's plans is the long-overdue decision by the Supreme Court in the "Graves case" . . . Should the decision be favorable to the former Governor, not even his closest friends will vouchsafe a guess as to his intentions.

THE LATEST "DOPE" is that the Curley candidacy will make a three-cornered race of the Kelly vs. Dever affair . . . Although there are several who profess to know that the former governor and the former lieutenant governor have an "understanding" . . . The former governor, according to these gentlemen, has disavowed a desire to preside at Beacon Hill again . . . The "if" in the case of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley is much less involved . . . The Suffolk county prosecutor will run for attorney-general, the predictions have it, in event that President Roosevelt is a candidate for a third-term.

MUCH LESS ACTIVITY IN DEMOCRATIC CIRCLES has been evidenced in the advance lineup of the attorney general's fight than has marked the scramble for the same nomination on the part of ambitious Republicans . . . This contest has advanced to the point where deep "strategy" already is in order . . . With former Dist. Atty. Bushnell of Middlesex a candidate, the "opposition" has hit on a device to embarrass this particular candidacy . . . If there is an older device in politics, your envoy, at the moment, does not recall it . . . It is the very simple exercise of the "same name" gag . . . The name Bushnell is not the simplest tag to match . . . But, fortunately for those who fear the Bushnell strength, a ready-made name is at hand . . . It is not identical, but it is close enough to confuse the electorate . . . And its owner is Ed Bushnell, the former assistant district attorney of the county once deweyed by Mr. Bushnell . . . There was talk today that Mr. Bushell's name would be on the Republican ballot . . . Not that he isn't a worthy candidate—regardless of the similarity in names.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY WILL SUPPLY a candidate to the Democratic list of those seeking to succeed Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever . . . The announcement of Atty. Joseph V. Carroll, who futilely carried the Democratic banner last running against Dist. Atty. Bradford, may be expected shortly . . . His friends will not be surprised if Asst. Atty.-Gen. Maurice M. Goldman is one of those aiming to succeed his present boss . . . Meantime the Republican race for this nomination gives more than mere promise it gives evidence that this will be the hottest of any nominational fight . . . Three district attorneys, two former district attorneys, two unsuccessful candi-

WARNER BAXTER IN COMEBACK

By Harriet Parsons

Warner Baxter

Panch-Hitting for Louella O. Parsons, Who Is on Vacation

HOLLYWOOD, June 4—When Warner Baxter left Fox, after an association of twelve years, he indicated that he might try the stage for a while. But Warner has changed his mind, I'm glad to report. He'll star in "Legacy," young Bob Sherwood's first production for Columbia. "Legacy," a novel by Charles Romer, which hits the bookstands next month, has been described as "an American forsyte saga." In it Baxter will play a father with five sons.

Producer Sherwood, who is not to be confused with Playwright Robert Emmet Sherwood, is only 29, but both Columbia and Baxter apparently have plenty of faith in his ability to deliver. He's well known as a commentator and has had experience with stage production, but making movies is something new for him.

AMONG THOSE who had big shindigs over the weekend were the Alan Joneses and the Bart Marshalls; Helen Parrish and Forrest Tucker, Linda Darnell and Robert Shaw, and Lois Ranson and Rand Brooks were a peppy party at the Cocoanut Grove Saturday night. TWO-MINUTE STORY

IT WAS ONE of those eternal triangles. Nan, who was twenty-nine and married to John Leonard, was hopelessly in love with Charles.

Yet, it really wasn't her fault that it had happened, for she wasn't the type wilfully to disregard her vows.

Rather, her love had grown slowly, unnoticed, until it had reached such proportions that she was powerless against it, and now she could no longer deny herself the pleasure of Charles' company.

Sometimes, of course, she was a little frightened and ashamed, but she couldn't help herself, so it went on.

THE CURIOUS part about it all was that Nan loved her husband also and he loved her. He didn't complain when she bought a new hat and he didn't fuss about the morning coffee. John was understanding and kind, but he was also older and staid and uninspiring. Moreover, their marriage had long since lost its glamour—and she was young.

That was, no doubt, what had paved the way for her infatuation. She still wanted gaiety and admiration, and the dull security of her married life failed her in this respect. But Charles didn't. He had the polished, worldly air of a cosmopolite and an accomplished attentiveness that was flattering.

It wasn't strange, therefore, that Nan's heartbeat quickened whenever she saw Charles, and that she couldn't resist him.

Now, unobserved by him, she saw Charles kiss another woman. This didn't really surprise Nan, for she had realized in the very beginning that Charles was inconstant and she had expected such an incident to occur.

Her hands were clenched, but otherwise she appeared calm as she sat in the darkness and noted, without emotion, that Charles was his usual self-gentle, yet suave; his phrases tender and eloquent.

He kissed his companion once again, long, as if he could never let her go, and all the time Nan watched them, her heart beating madly; her breath sticking in her throat.

THEN quickly she was on her feet and the room was flooded with light. Another Charles Barry play had ended and Nan hurried out, realizing that not until tomorrow could she see her idol again.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

ALL THESE "Pep Talks," they're mighty exhilarating when you're rarin' to go. But what are you to do when you haven't any pep?

Suppose illness or grief or shock, disgust or despair has wiped out your spark, left you limp, ambitionless? Or suppose life has struck one of those mysterious slumps which come to even the happiest and healthiest?

As youngsters, we're not prepared for those slumps. We notice them, but we don't think they're necessary. They're caused, we're sure, by the laziness and cowardice of old age.

But we don't stay enthusiastic and alert forever. Sooner or later the high tide ebbs for us, as it has for our elders . . . leaves us staring out over the desolate flats on which nothing stirs or calls. Presently the tide will come back, salt and fierce. But we don't know that at the time. We think that everything has stopped for keeps. And we don't care! If life is to be like this, we don't want to go on.

YET WE MUST go on; life can't be tossed aside as easily as that. There are those who depend on us. And there is that inexorable voice inside ourselves which demands that we take the trail, whether we're eager or not. But how? You'll find the answer in that gallant book, already quoted in this space, Antoine De Saint Exupery's "WIND, SAND AND STARS. No finer writing or sounder philosophy was ever offered troubled America than appears in this young French aviator's account of his adventures as an air mail pilot, flying the mail from Toulouse, in Southwestern France, to Dekar in West Africa.

Repeatedly, the ecstasy of that wild flight wheeled into catastrophe, stripped the wings from his spirit as well as his plane. There was that nightmare time when Guillaumet, his friend, crashed in the frozen death trap of the Andes, struggled for days, blind, delirious—"trudging without ice axe or rope, without provisions, crawling on the faces of vertical walls . . . hands, feet and knees bleeding in a temperature 20 degrees below zero."

What hope was there for a man in such a pass? Yet, without hope, he went on—was rescued.

WHAT CAN you do when you've lost your zest for doing anything . . . when faith and delight, ecstasy and ambition, all have failed, and you're paralyzed mentally, drained emotionally? YOU CAN GO ON MAKING THE MOTIONS . . . TAKING A STEP AT A TIME, ONE STEP AND THEN ANOTHER.

FROM A SOCIAL butterfly to a bookworm . . . This transition seems like the opposite of nature, but it has proved quite successful for Peggy Seaver . . .

Peggy, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Seaver of New Bedford, was one of the past season's debs . . . She made her formal social bow at the picturesque New Bedford Assembly, according to tradition established way back in the palmy days of the old Whaling City, and attended the whole round of fashionable affairs for her sister debs in Boston . . .

Nowadays whether the rain keeps her indoors, or she's sunning herself in a deck chair, she has her nose in a book as her eyes rapidly scan the pages . . . Not content to spend the usual society girl's type of summer—loafing at beach clubs and attending teas (iced)—Peggy cooked up a unique idea for a profitable and interesting summer . . .

She has a bookstore in an automobile trailer and tours the towns and resorts on the Cape selling her volumes . . . Naturally she has to read most of the books in order to sell them intelligently . . .

She started the venture last summer and it went very well, so this past winter she sandwiched secretarial lessons in with her debutante activities and can now handle all the business details of her migratory library . . .

Vassar Seniors Present Plays

A TRAILER SEEMS to fit well into many summer enterprises . . . At Vassar a group of seniors with theatrical inclinations have formed a rolling stock company . . . and with their scenery and belongings packed into a trailer will tour from one seashore or mountain resort to another to put on their plays . . .

Between now and commencement these self-styled vagabonds are collecting a crowd of theatrically minded college boys to play the leading male parts . . . for it's the consensus of opinion among college girls that no amount of grease on the hair or immaculately pressed trousers can make girls play mens roles convincingly . . .

Nancy Wolcott of Winnetka, Ill., is one of the ring leaders in the group and representing New England are Helen Douglas, of Northampton, who has studied diction, stagecraft and dancing, and Jane O'Connor, of West Hartford, who is the only undergraduate in the group . . . She's a junior at Vassar . . . the others will all receive their degrees this month . . .

HELEN H. Helen, a winsome little blonde, member of the Junior League and Vincent Club, wore a printed frock and rose tile wool coat, for dancing with her beau on the Sheraton Roof the other evening . . . She will spend the summer at her family's summer home in Cohasset where her sister, Mrs. Sheldon Fisher (Katie Johnson) has a year round home.

Horse Show By Young Folk

Don't think the small fry are going to be outdone by all the horse shows and parties the older folks put on. The big horse show at the Dedham Country and Polo Club stole most of the limelight over the week-end, but many youngsters out Newton, Weston and Wellesley way had one of their own.

These young riders of the Pegasus Club had their show in Weston Saturday and topped off their busy day of competition for blue ribbons and trophies with dinner and dancing at Seiler's Ten Acres in Wayland.

The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Roberts of West Newton, Miss Lois James and Miss Kay Broderick. Even though most of the youngsters were sporting their first evening dresses or white tuxedo coats they were not a bit shy about dancing.

Cooking

Junior's Meals Solved

By MARTHA LEE

In the busy month of June a great many responsibilities besides the toddler's diet claim mother's attention, and she can be more than ever glad that junior foods offer their assistance. Thus she may, without any qualms, have older brothers and sisters prepare some of junior's meals while she is busy gardening or getting their clothes ready for outings.

Junior foods are canned fruits, meats, vegetables and desserts prepared especially for babies around 12 months of age who the doctor says are ready for coarser foods that will give them reason to do a little chewing. They eliminate the tedious duties involved in cooking and chopping the fresh vegetables and fruits when mother has enough to do to give her grown-ups their three squares a day.

Twelve varieties of junior foods come completely prepared so that all one has to do when giving junior the vitamins and minerals characteristic of these foods is to heat and serve.

MAKE CHANGES IN DIET GRADUAL

These nutritious foods, you will find, also make it easier to guide the toddler through the difficult period when he is changing from soft to solid food, for it is necessary that his introduction to the new texture be gradual. To start a bit of junior food may be combined with a strained food of the same flavor and then the proportion of junior food gradually increased. These foods are so good in flavor and attractive in appearance that children take to them easily, however.

A grand thing about the junior foods is that they help you teach the child at an early age to enjoy a complete menu combining a main dish, vegetable and dessert, for you have the makings of well balanced meals in the variety of junior foods. Then in a few months, when it is time to start teaching the child to eat a few grown-up foods, you may supplement the junior foods with the more easily digested items from the family table. You will find the following menus helpful in planning your toddler's daily diet.

You Can Be Beautiful

New Aid for Blemished, Or Acne Complexions

By ARLINE GOULD

ANYONE who has known the heartbreak of a skin with tendencies to blemishes . . . acne, blackheads or otherwise . . . knows full well without our telling them that sulphur is nature's answer to a purged and renewed complexion.

Sulphur aids came in many forms . . . some with hardly enough actual sulphur in them to do much good. We have news . . . exciting news . . . for there is a new cleansing preparation which comes with its own complexion brush . . . and though it is in soap form, it is not soap!

It is actually a 15 per cent colloidal sulphur cleanser which is made from colloidal sulphur baked and pressed into the form of a soap!

You use it, scrub with it, cleanse as frequently as you can, using the complexion brush to help shed the old, disfigured skin and to allow the new beautiful layer beneath to come through, shining clean and fair to behold.

Sulphur in colloidal form is the gift of science to blemished skins, because the old forms are not as efficacious, not as easy to manage.

It is, in effect, the same colloidal sulphur your own skin manufactures, and not actually as purifying as the modern type. This is the perfect cleanser and healer.

And also unique and outstanding is another quality of this new cleanser . . . it reacts on any skin, dry or oily, in direct ratio to the waste which the skin itself throws off . . . and in this way, it is beneficial in normalizing all types of skin . . . whether the dry or oily condition is all over or just in spots, like around the nose, chin . . . and so on!

If you'd like to learn all about this perfect sulphur cleanser in baked "soap" form . . . for healing, purging and soothing blemished or acne skins, Phone Arline Gould LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love And Marriage

Bride in New District

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Married only recently, I came to this neighborhood as a bride, but my husband has lived here almost all his life. I'm rather shy, and am puzzled about making acquaintances. Who makes the first gesture when we meet on the street, the neighbor or I? My husband introduced me to a few but he's not always with me when I meet these friends of his. IN DOUBT.

A lady always speaks first to a gentleman. There is no rule about ladies recognizing each other; they speak when they meet. As your husband is well known in the neighborhood, the rule is for his friends to call on you, and then you can return the visits. You must be pleasant and friendly.

As you tell me you are shy, suggest to your husband that he invite in some of his closest friends to meet you. You could have a little party with simple refreshments.

She Didn't Feel Like Entertaining

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Last year I met my girl friend's brother and we became attracted to one another. We had a small cottage at the beach and he used to come down there, and we'd meet on the beach. But I usually asked him up to the house. One day it was raining, and I guess I wasn't in the entertaining mood. I didn't ask him to come up to the house, and I suppose this hurt him, because I haven't seen him since.

Through his boy friend, I invited them both to the house to play cards; they accepted, but that was over a month ago and I haven't seen or heard from them. I haven't even gone to my girl friend's house, because I don't want to appear to be running after him. What can I do to regain their friendship?

BETTY.

Suppose you try another party, Sunday night supper this time, and see if you can't get the boy back on the old pleasant footing. Evidently he doesn't harbor any deep grudge against you, or he wouldn't have accepted your invitation to play cards.

Manners Can End Petting Problems

KNOW ETIQUETTE OF DATING

If you are new at dating, what a puzzle that goodnight kiss can be! Will you be unpopular if you refuse?

Not if you have the smooth, gracious manner that comes from knowing your etiquette.

Instead of hurting the boy's feelings with a blunt "No" or an annoying look, say smilingly "But this isn't my petting day." And if you don't linger at your door perhaps you can evade the issue.

You may be sure you've made a better impression than if you'd seemed easy to kiss! Boys admire a girl who's poised in any situation and, if you know what's correct, you can sail easily through the social seas.

At the country club, at restaurants, dances you'll be delightfully poised when you know the rules in our 40-page booklet, Etiquette for the Teens. A modern social guide for modern situations; on dates, at the movies, in business, when motoring, visiting, traveling, entertaining.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, Etiquette for the Teens, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th st., New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Guides to Friendships

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

I LIKE PEOPLE

Who smile spontaneously and radiantly when they say "How do you do."

Who say "Thank you" for all small courtesies as well as for big ones, and who say it as graciously to servants as to their friends.

Who have pleasant, well-modulated voices.

Who have the gift of small talk when called upon to start the conversational ball rolling.

Who read the newspapers, keep themselves informed about what's happening here and there, and thereby are able to look intelligent and to talk intelligently when things in the news are mentioned and discussed.

Who answer invitations promptly.

Who put ashes in an ash-tray, and who, when they have finished smoking, put out their cigarette or cigar completely.

Who shake hands with just the proper degree of strength and warmth. Not a jelly-fish handshake, not a vise-like grip.

Who never, by voice or dress or behavior, attract attention to themselves on the street or in any other public place.

Who never use the words "bored" or "nervous."

Who always remember to send greetings, remembrances or love to members of our family, or to inquire about one who is ill.

Who have only one set of manners, and those gracious manners. Not two sets—one for home, one for company.

Who drive a car with a courteous consideration for other drivers and for pedestrians.

Boston After Dark -:- By George Holland

dates for the office, and at least one Boston legislator, is the lineup at present.

THE BIOGRAPHERS of the great John Ringling could have added an absorbing episode to their "From Sawdust to Millions" (which is running in Cosmopolitan) had some intimate of the late circus king been privvy to the circumstances of the Ringling Bros. vs Boston Garden debate of 1928 . . . Sheldon H. Fairbanks, managing director of Wonderland Park, and the genius of the Ringling tribe were the principals . . . Tex Rickard was the intermediary, a sort of third man in the big ring . . .

WITH A CONTRACT signed by the American Circus Company in his inside pocket, Mr. Fairbanks met Mr. Ringling in the Rickard sanctum of the New York Garden . . . The late Tex introduced the two, and excused himself . . . In leaving, he had pitted against each other two of the fastest chain cigar smokers in America . . . Mr. Ringling lighted up . . . Mr. Fairbanks lighted up . . . Mr. Ringling puffed and puffed . . . Mr. F. took a few puffs himself . . . But there was no conversation . . . For at least ten minutes, this situation prevailed. Rickard knocked at the door and the spell of silence was broken at last . . . With one voice, both of his guests cried: "Come in!"

RICKARD ENTERED his own office and sized up the situation . . . Mr. Ringling cracked first . . . "This Yankee horse-trader Tex, said the circus king, "just don't want to talk!" . . . "Do you mean to say you two have sat here all this time without closing that deal!" was Rickard's response . . . Mr. Fairbanks acknowledged that this was approximately the case . . . Then he showed a contract, signed by the interloping rival circus, which called for $55,000 for the rental of the Boston Garden . . . Ringling recovered from the shock four days later . . . And a deal was made . . . Perhaps with fewer spoken words than any similar transaction than ever accompanied a deal of this magnitude.

A CUTE LITTLE STORY comes from the neighborhood of the Esplanade—up near the Hotel Sheraton . . . Young Tom Sawyer, this 5-year-old pride and joy of the Spencer L. Sawyers, was one of a group of several youngsters . . . The senior Sawyer, as most of Boston knows, is the very able manager of the famous hotel on the bank of the Charles . . .

THE KIDS WERE boasting a bit, telling of the importance of their respective fathers . . . Little Tom listened until his companions had finished . . . The kids had strutted their stuff with youthful exuberance, and the ordinary youngster would have been busy thinking up a few embellishments to the importance of his particular dad . . . Not Tom Sawyer . . . One of his small pals had regaled the company with his father's reputation and skill as an eye-specialist . . Another's was "the best lawyer in Boston" . . . Another's was a marvellous census-taker . . . The bestest . . . "You know what my father is?" finally queried the Sawyer heir-apparent . . . "My father is the janitor of the Sheraton Hotel."

Death Decree for 2 In Hush Murder

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 4 (INS)—Mike Simeone, 32, former Detroit gangster, and Gordon Hawkins, 21, were sentenced to die in the San Quentin gas chamber for their part in the murder of Robert Sherrard, 18, while their two convicted accomplices were to go on trial today for their canity.

Simeone, Mrs. Juanita "The Duchess" Spinelli, Hawkins, and Albert Ives confessed that they drugged Sherrard and threw his body in the Sacramento river, because he was "talking too much" about the gang's holdup-murder of Leland S. Cash, San Francisco barbecue stand manager.

IT WAS ONE of those not-very-popular resorts where the hot water always ran cold, and the tub had a criss-cross design from constant grinding of sand against its smooth surface. The wood of the back steps was warm against their wet feet, and their bare soles made moist outlines on it when they dashed in after a swift dip in the nearby lake.

Summer Romance

By Miriam F. Brandon

The Cast of Characters in "Summer Romance"

LEE, who wears his heart on his sleeve but doesn't seem to be able to deceive.

MARCIA, his wife, who fully understands her Lothario mate.

When she wasn't in a bathing suit, she wore a short, faded skirt of some rough cotton material. It swung from her hips, and beneath the hem, her legs, brown and bare, extended chubbily. The scuffed shoes reminded him of the heedless barefoot sandals of his boyhood.

There was nothing about her to suggest the complex, carefully handled cross currents of his metropolitan existence. Even talking with her had a charm of simplicity which he hadn't enjoyed for years.

"Let's stay here," he suggested, flinging the little knapsack on the ground. That was the day they found the still pool surrounded by a wall of magnificent trees. The sweet odor of green things was overpowering.

She sank to her knees and spread her hands, palms down, on the moist grass, as though unable fully to accept the blessed stillness of this unexpectedly lovely retreat. He noticed her hands. Well formed wrists, slightly square fingers; nails innocent of bright enamel. With a shock he realized he actively disliked all those long, white, crimson-tipped fingers which had drummed on cocktail bars, or dealt cards, or picked nervously at imaginary threads.

IN LOVE

He rolled over and stared up into her face. Her lashes were thick and silky. It was the first time in years he had seen lashes which were not shellacked by mascara.

"How lovely you are," he murmured, half aloud.

Her eyes returned his glance, and in their depths he read both amazement and dismay.

"Why, Lee," she whispered, her voice free from laughter, "that—coming from you—is sort of breath-taking."

"Why should it be?" he demanded truculently. Beneath his impatience, however, was a faint stirring of relief that she had mouthed no flippancy to jar the moment. "I don't see why it should be so darned unusual."

She made a vague motion in one hand. "Oh, I don't know," she began evasively. "I always thought of you as being sort of, you know, brittle and sophisticated. The kind that talks in dialogue instead of just conversation."

He was silent, digesting this. "I've fallen in love with you," he told her, and his voice was curiously shy.

Her eyes clouded with uneasiness. "You will recover quickly," she told him bitterly. "There is nothing to worry about."

"I don't want to recover," he protested. "I don't want anything but you—as you are at this moment."

She shook her head. "I might be one of those distressingly sentimental women who keep love letters tied in faded ribbons," she warned.

He started at her hard, as though trying to find some hidden meaning in her words.

"I believe you are just that sort of person," and there was wonder in his voice. "I'll bet you want a nice, placid sort of life, all packed with minor victories."

"That's what I have," she told him slowly. "It isn't bad."

"Is it as lovely—as this?"

"No," she admitted reluctantly. "Nothing has ever been as lovely as this. Nothing!"

"I WANT YOU"

He accepted the admission and built an entire vacation around it. A week and a half was left of his precious time, and the clatter of a roaring city was remote and distant even as the tempo of a complicated social position was vague and blurred.

But, on his last day, he felt compelled to break through the barrier which they had erected by tacit agreement. They returned once more to the sweet-smelling grove where the cool air hung like a magic curtain.

"When we get back to town," he began.

"I'm quite a different person in town," she told him gently. "It wouldn't do at all."

He refused to accept her decision. "Why must you be different?" he insisted. "Why can't we —"

She put a trembling index finger over his lips. It was cool against his flesh. Her eyes were deeply troubled, and a sudden moisture seemed to gather in them as she looked down upon him.

"Please, Lee." She was suddenly helpless before the request she saw written in his eyes. "Don't—"

His arms were about her and his lips, demanding, swept aside all protests.

"I want you—just as you are," he was whispering, an urgency in his tone which was strange to her. "I never want you any different than just as you are at this moment. Marcia, you must believe me!"

The ride back was made in silence. He tried to break through the wall which she erected between them, but when he left the following day, he carried with him a sense of irredeemable loss.

A sense of loss which the clatter of the sweltering city did not lessen. It took but a few days to get back in the swing of things. His wife, with that implacable calendar, scribbled black notations on the white paper in much the same way that a general signs orders for his armies.

She was seated opposite him now, her face intent upon a list which she had in her slim hands. With an uneasy sense of disloyalty, he compared her with the girl with whom he had fallen so deeply in love. But the comparison was useless. This woman opposite was gleaming, well turned out, sophisticated to the nth degree. Her slim legs, silk clad, were crossed, and upon one foot a gayly bright mule dangled precariously as she wiggled her toes contentedly.

Her face, too, was mask-like; the gleam of crimson lipstick picking up and repeating the unexpected crimson of the nails.

"Tuesday night Mimi Brickner is having her dance. That leaves Thursday and Saturday of next week," she was saying. "But we simply have to have the Carltons over. We'll make it Thursday, if you like and then we can have the Rhodes at the same time. You know—two birds killed with a single dinner party . . ."

She looked up to flash a grin at him. "Why so sober?" she teased.

He shrugged, "Bored, I guess."

She gave him a curious look. "Even the prospect of having Kitty Rhodes as a dinner partner bores you?" she asked, trying to hide the faint sharpness in her voice. "Don't tell me you've recovered, Lee?"

THE TRUTH

He looked at her quickly. How ironic that she should begin to wonder now, of all times, about Kitty Rhodes. Not that there had been anything to wonder about, but Kitty was good company. Splendid for cocktails, or a little secret luncheon. But that was before his vacation. The memory of that summer vacation fell over him now like a blessing. It made the Kitty Rhodes all look rather garish and ugly.

As though sensing his confusion, his wife crossed over to him now. Her hand rested for a moment upon the crisp thickness of his hair.

"Poor Lee," she murmured. Stooping, she snuggled her lips against the warm spot at the back of his neck. He stretched his arm around until his fingertips touched the softness of her cheek.

"About Kitty Rhodes," he began, hesitatingly, "I wanted you to know—it was nothing. Just a few lunches—"

For a moment he thought he saw a slightly uneasy expression in her eyes, as though she were asking, "Somebody else, then? If it isn't Kitty, it must be somebody else!" But the expression was gone in a twinkling—just as the still, lovely grove was lost in the hazy dimness of his memory.

"Don't forget," she called over her shoulder, "The Carltons and the Rhodes on Thursday—"

She was gone. He stared stupidly at the closed door, while an inner voice cried, "Go after her! Tell her the truth! She ought to know—about this girl this summer!"

He closed his eyes for a moment and then, springing to his feet, he dashed through the door which separated them. In a moment he had her in his arms, this cool, self-possessed woman. She was trembling, like a girl, and her eyes were wide with questions.

"You were right," he was saying hurriedly lest his courage go before he got the words out, "about there being somebody—on vacation, this summer—I—I fell in love. I met a girl I never knew before—and I fell in love—"

"This Summer!" Her voice was a shocked whisper. "Lee, you can't mean— "

"But I do. I—I fell in love with the you I saw when we went away together—and, Marcia, I'll never be satisfied with anybody else—ever again."

He held her tightly for a moment, and then she gently disentangled herself. "Please, Lee," she laughed a trifle shakily, "I have things to do now."

He frowned. "You always have," he grumbled. "I suppose you're worried about the place cards or the centerpiece for the table?"

Her laugh rang out gaily, triumphantly. "Not exactly," she told him happily. "I want to scrape some of this war-paint off. Oh, Lee, it's going to be marvelous—just being myself!"

THE END

"I'm quite a different person in town," she told him gently. "It wouldn't do at all."

AUSTEN LAKE

Hint to Tom Yawkey: Why Not Buy the Bees?

THE BOSTON BRAVES, ALIAS THE BEES, are for sale! Not for sale in loud, boisterous, peddling tones! But in a hopeful whisper! If the right man comes along with . . . well . . . er . . . not exactly a sockful of cash . . . but, ahem! . . . let's say a half million!

AUSTEN LAKE

Maybe that will sound like a bargain to Thomas A. Yawkey, the Red Sox Croesus, who poured $4,000,000 of patrimonial funds into his Red Sox property and operates his garden spot about sixty days in the year, betwixt April 15 and September 30. For half a million more Tom could keep his park busy an average of 120 days at no greater overhead or cost of upkeep.

Oh, I know he won't! But it makes sound sense! Because a ball park is about the most useless plant in the universe when the "No game" sign is out, or in the long interval between seasons. The wind stirs the left-over rubbish in the aisles. Flocks of vagrant pigeons nest in the rafters. Taxes accumulate and the cost of painting and repairs eats into the profits. So this, at least, is one spot where two can live together cheaper than one.

Yawkey could, if he wished, walk over Commonwealth Avenue today, unscrew the cap of his fountain pen, draw a draft and say, "Have the boys report at Fenway Park when they come back from the road." Didn't he scribble a quarter million check for Joe Cronin?

But he won't, and I'll tell you why he won't! First because one headache at a time is enough, and next because an American League magnate has a natural antipathy for the opposite league and vice versa. There is, of course, nothing in the constitutions of either major league to prevent a magnate from owning two ball clubs simultaneously on opposite sides of the fence. But there is a little-boy antagonism between the rival leagues that makes the name of one anathema in the nostrils of the other.

Bees on Sink-or-Swim Basis!

IN THE END THE BEES WILL BE SOLD. I feel that! Somebody will come along with a yen for an expensive toy, as Tom Yawkey came along in the old raggety Red Sox day and paid Bob Quinn $1,200,000 at a time when Bob was scraping the bottom of the barrel and pawning his life insurance to meet the cost of hauling and hoteling his athletes. The situation is the same at Bees Field today as it was at Fenway in 1932—meager capital and meager attendance and worry, worry, worry to face the first and fifteenth of every month.

I know this. That the Bees are on a sink-or-swim basis as far as finances go. What money is paid out must come from immediate turnstile profits. There is no archangel hovering around to shower down new funds for expensive rookies or put a cash-patch on a deficit. What the Bees spend they must make at the gate.

The reason for that is clear. When Charles F. Adams, Boston sportsman, rescued the Braves from bankruptcy a few years ago he had, in both old and fresh cash, a $550,000 equity (positively!). And then, at the behest of Judge K. M. Landis, who ruled that horse racing and baseball finances must not be commingled, Adams turned over the voting power of the Bees' stock, in toto, to Bob Quinn with the understanding that Quinn would operate the club and Adams would operate his track. If the Bees made money—Fine! If they lost money—tsk! tsk! In any case Adams, both because he had been bitten painfully before and did not propose to pour further funds into the venture, and because he couldn't have done it anyway according to the terms of his agreement with Landis, is as remote from Bees' treasure troubles as though he had never wet nursed the orphaned property in the first place.

Not Enough Tom Yawkeys

ODD PART OF IT IS THAT THE UNOFFICIAL price tag on the Bees is around $500,000 today, based mainly in the appraisal of the players and the good will involved in the franchise. Max West and Eddie Miller are both said to be worth $100,000. Tony Cuccinello is also valued at another $35,000—the sum that the Giants are reported willing to give before June 15. The other 25 or 30 athletes have market rating of considerably less.

What's odd about it? Why, if memory serves me, Bob Quinn was assigned by President Ford Frick to appraise the Braves value at the time Judge Fuchs slipped down the wastepipe, and Bob, who was then general manager of the Brooklyn club, placed the total value at about $150,000, including goodwill and player stocks. At the time there were players like Wally Berger, Fred Frankhouse, Bill Urbanski, Al Spohrer, Buck Jordan, Rupert Thompson and a lot of other nondescripts. Yet that team had finished 5, 4, 4 in the previous three years whereas this club is in seventh place and finished seventh last season.

The trouble with the run-down baseball properties is that there are not enough Yawkeys to go around, enough men with independent, massive fortunes and play-instinct to buy and operate teams for fun instead of profit. The late William J. Wrigley did it in Chicago. W. O. Briggs is doing it in Detroit and Powel Crossley in Cincinnati. Colonel Jake Ruppert did it before he died in New York. But all four have, or had, something besides baseball to sell—chewing gum, auto bodies, radios or beer. That's what makes Tom Yawkey unique. His Red Sox property has no advertising value for some other commodity. He has mines, lumber mills, factories, ship lines and forests. Baseball is just baseball to him!

SOX FACE OLD TEAMMATE AS BROWNS INVADE FENS

If that tall, handsome gent with the daffy underhand motion looks strangely familiar out there in the box for the St. Louis Browns this afternoon it is because he is Eldon Auker, who last year was the prize fizzle of what was wistfully referred to as the Red Sox pitching staff.

FLATTENING BUMP—Trainer Win Green of Sox works hard kneading injured back of Jimmy Foxx beofre windup game of Chi-Sox series at Fens. Jimmy gamely insisted on playing despite great pain from spot where pitch hit him Sunday.

Promptly at three o'clock in the afternoon every fourth day last year Auker would toe the hill for the Fenwayites and promptly at three-fifteen he would be taking his shower while the Red Sox were struggling valiantly to overcome a si , seven or eight run deficit.

COULDN'T GET 'EM OUT

Last year he couldn't get anybody out and the Hose are playing fervently the same will hold true today.

But don't be surprised if the same Red Sox who wondered how Auker ever had nerve enough to draw his pay every two weeks will see plenty of stuff thrown at them when they step into the batter's box this peeyem.

For Elongated Eldon has taken a leaf from the notebooks of so many other ball players who looked hopeless while playing for Boston only to come to life the minute the Sox front office gave up on them, and is doing a right smart job of chucking for the Browns.

PITCHING WELL AGAIN

He is sporting a 3-4 average for the season and would like nothing better than to reach the .500 mark at the expense of his mates of last year. That average, incidentally, is not a true indication of the job he's been doing this season. Auker dropped a couple of extremely well pitched decisions, one of them to the Yankees.

The Sox, however, are confident that today is "Cousin Day" for them. He was so bad while pitching for them last year that every last man on the team is planning on a perfect day at the platter. They claim they would rather bat against Eldon than hit the ball out of their hands. They say it will carry farther.

Logically the Hose are 100 per cent correct. However, they are not taking into consideration the jinx which their castoffs seem to exercise when playing against them.

McNAIR V SOX HAIR

And well they should, for it was only yesterday that the prime jinx wielder of them all, Eric McNair, strutted his stuff for the umpteenth time since the Sox management so kindly parted with him for what amounted to the ice cream concession in Little America.

The Cronimites had plenty of chances to win yesterday's ball game and muffed them of their own accord, but the one bid that looked like the McCoy was the one which was spiked by the aforementioned McNair.

It was in the eighth and Infielders Doerr and Tabor had produced successive singles. The crowd threw off the lethargy which settles when a contest is one-sided and began to chant for a Red Sox win.

Johnny Peacock was the batter and the Senator from North Carolina did his gosh dingdest. He belted what looked like a cinch single right by Pitcher Clint Brown and legged it lickety split for first.

A. L. BEST INFIELD

But up from the grave and in need of a shave came friend Eric to make one of the slickest stops and throws of the season to nip the disgusted Peacock at first and turn what was destined to be a Sox blitzkrieg into a routine inning.

Kennedy apparently loves the pitching in Fenway Park. He picked up two well rapped hits yesterday to add to his collection of five garnered in the twin bill Sunday.

MISSING IN CLUTCH

Tom Yawkee's laborers were teeing off yesterday as their 14 hits well testifies, but they weren't doing it in the clutches. You can't leave nine chums stranded on the base paths and expect to win a ball game and that is just exactly what the Hose did in yesterday's debacle.

For the power club which they undoubtedly are the Sox have been leaving a surprising number of runners stranded of late.

Fungo Hitters

Stores Play For Golf Cup

By BILL GRIMES

For more than a week, there has been a shortage of fungo bats in all sporting goods stores. In fact, these long thin light implements which are used to propel baseballs are at a premium. And, for a worthy reason, preparedness.

It seems that the powers that be of the Boston Retail Trade Board Golf Association went into a huddle about 10 days ago and came up with an innovation, which, in their opinions will stump the experts.

CORNERED FUNGO MARKET

They ruled that every participant MUST use a fungo bat when he plays his first shot off the first tee this afternoon at the Charles River Country Club, where the annual Boston Retail Trade Board tournament will be staged.

Just as soon as the ruling of the golf committee became known, the boys blitzkrieged the bat departments of all sporting goods shoppes and have cornered the fungo market.

Starting with a fungo shot off the first tee, the annual golf tournament of the Boston Retail Trade Board is to be a mixture of the royal and ancient an dthe national games. The field will be divided into teams, representing the Red Sox and the St. Louis Browns. The committee has compiled a score card similar to the one that the Harry M. Stevens Co. sells at the ball parks.

CRONIN, FOXX TO SHOW HOW

Along about the time that the late starters are finishing, Manager Joe Cronin and Jimmy Foxx of the Red Sox and Manager Fred Haney and Coach Fred Hoffman of the Browns will be at Charles River. The ball players will endeavor to demonstrate how to stroke a golf ball with a fungo bat. They should do all right, particularly "County Fair" Hoffman who wields a fungo bat daily during the field practice sessions of the Browns.

A year ago the Boston Retail Trade Board Sweepstakes proved a grand success, and it is expected that the mixture of golf and baseball planned for this afternoon will be equally as exciting and most interesting.

RECORD FIELD EXPECTED

Although the annual is restricted to executives, a record breaking field is expected at Charles River today.

Larry Bitner will lead a large and healthy aggregation of Filene golfing ball players. He's banking on E. J. Frost, Jack McCarthy, Bob List, Paul Hennessey Bill Bixby, W. B. Frye, Jimmy Quinn, Paul Quinlan, F. B. Stumcke, Gerry Reed, J. J. Barbaron, Ackley R Slee, Harry Floyd, Bill Shields, Brooks Schumacher G. L. Sawyer and William H. McLeod who will manage the club from the bench. Unfortunately for Filene's, Jack Egan is recovering from a long and serious illness and will not be able to play.

Bunny Hawkins has gathered a strong team for Jordans, in R. H Dick Edwards, C. S. Thompson Rod Dodge, Bill McTigue, Joe Black and the Mittens, Arthur and Robert, while Manager Harvey Schaschke of Gilchrist has selected Ray Marad, who was the runner up in the state amateur championships last year to Teddy Adams at Tedesco, Carleton W. Cook, Warren Cole Kvia Bulger and Thomas A. Cox who tied Frank Daigle of Scott's Furriers a year ago with the high score of the annual, 135.

VETERAN HOVEY TEAM

President E. D. Warner, Hovey's is banking on a veteran club to bring him through. He has Will Frank and Joe Howe as his aces, while Chandler's will be represented by George Hanson, W. Breihart, John F. Madden and George Johnson. Kennedy's and Leopold Morse have entered two men teams, E. H. Presbrey and H. L. Thompson and Harry Ross and Leon Strauss.

Frank Daigle has lopped a few strokes off his 1939 game and believes that he'll be of much assistance to Henry August in the fight for the Scott's Furriers cause, while Dave Moeser will stage a one man

WOMEN OPEN PLAY FOR STATE GOLF TITLE

WORCESTER, June 4—In the first round of the 40th annual Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts championship today at the Worcester Country Club, no less than 14 of the 32 who weathered the qualifying round are making their debuts in match play of a state classic.

With so many inexperienced golfers in the field, the favorites should romp through, particularly Mrs. H. Warren Beard, the defending champion, whom, incidentally was the medalist with an 85 in yesterday's qualifying round.

The W. G. A. uses the numerical draw in pairing opponents for match play in its annual state championships. So, Mrs. Beard was placed at No. 1.

Unless the contenders play to form, numerical draws invariably bunch the strength of the field in one or two brackets. Such was the case this year. The qualifying round proved too much of a test. Only Mrs. Beard and Mrs. John Grew posted cards of less than 90. The scores ranged from 85 to a three way play off for one place for the 1078.

FIRST ROUND

Mrs. Warren Beard, Charles River, vs. Mrs. A. H. Peabody, Dedham
Mrs. W. G. Dow, Wellesley, vs. W. N. Austin, T. C. C
Mrs G. N. Adelman, Thorny Lea, vs. Peggy Baker, Worcester.
Mrs. George Norby, Green Hill, vs. Mrs. R. G. Hess, Tatnuck.
Mrs. Thomas Whiteside, Dedham, vs. Peggy Jackson, Belmont.
Mrs. C. L. Goss, Tatnuck, vs. Mrs. John S. Amory, Myopia.
Anne Gormley, Belmont, vs. Pearl Levin, Pine Brook Valley.
Mrs. D. K. McClusky, Grand View, vs. Ruth Likie, Woodland.
Mrs. John Grew, Dedham, vs. Mrs. R. H. Morris, T. C. C.
Mrs. Thomas J. Carty, Blue Hill, vs. Mrs. J. T. Leonard, T. C. C.
Mrs. H. F. Prunaret, Charles River, vs. Mrs. Eli Brilliant.
Mrs. Willard Howard, Wellesley, vs. Mrs. F. H. Gleason, Cohasset.
Deborah Verry, Tatnuck, vs. Mrs. F. H. Tarr, Jr., Rockport.
Mrs. C. F. Eaton, Jr., T. C. C., vs. Marie Bourneuf, Charles River.
Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., Oakley, vs. Mrs. L. B. Goff, Grand View.
Mrs. C. F. Bartholomew, Brae Burn, vs. Nancy Sutherland, Walpole.

In the first quarter, there are three outstanding players, Mrs. Beard, Mrs. W. G. Dow, Wellesley, and Mrs. W. N. Austin, The Country Club. And, because of the numerical draw, Mrs. Dow is playing Mrs Austin today and regardless of the outcome, the field will be weakened

Mrs. Warren Beard should breeze right through the field to the finals. There isn't a golfer in the upper half of the draw who has even an outside chance of dethroning the defending champion.

Apparently, Miss Gormley toted yesterday, during the qualifying round, for with six holes to play she was contesting for the medal. She was out in 44 and all even with Mrs. Beard at that point and then started back with three put outs. Then, she weakened to such an extent that she wound up with an even 90, five strokes over the medalist's figures.

Once the field gets squared away there'll be plenty of competition in the third and fourth quarters. Mrs. John Grew, Dedham the last champion, Mrs. Henri F. Prunaret, Charles River, the runner up to Mrs. Grew seven years ago, Mrs Willard Howard, Wellesley, who although a threat annually for years, has never reached her goal and Mrs. Thomas J. Carty, a newcomer to state champions are the class of the third bracket

In the lower bracket, there are such well known golfers as Miss Deborah Verry, Tatnuck, the 1938 titleholder, Mrs. Edward H. Baker, Jr., Oakley, five time winner of the title, and Mrs. C. F. Eaton, J The Country Club

FISH FAMINE ENDS FOR DARK MONTREAL

By DARK MONTREAL

It was one o'clock Sunday morning, slack of the ebb tide, the night as black as the run of a rat hole. Fog was a misty drizzle blown by the fresh southwest breeze straight in from Hog Island flats, shrouding the lights of Buzzards Bay highway bridge over the tide race at the Buttermilk estuary. A few late stayer-uppers groped cautiously behind the hazed headlights of passing cars. Not in that category was I, for I was newly risen. The alarm had gone off at midnight.

"What time will I look for you?" my wife asked, sleepily.

"I'll be back for breakfast. If I get a fish. But I'm out to break the jinx that's been riding me and don't start worrying till I'm gone two days."

FUTURE AT STAKE

I had fished more intensely and more often this spring than ever before, but with less good fortune as regards big fish, and it had been my misfortune to lose the biggest salmon I ever hooked. Over and beyond that I fished six hours for striped bass with Prescott Tisdale on Saturday and we never so much as had a strike in water where he made a killing alone on Thursday and Friday. It was getting so I didn't want to fish with anyone because I jinxed the boat. Now I was going out alone, to stay till I caught a good fish or admit the jinx had me licked and give up fishing.

That was why I stood on Buzzards Bay bridge at one of a nasty morning baiting two sea worms on an O'Shaughnessy hook.

The black tide began to flow gently in, enough to take a line out and murmur against the bridge abutments. An hour I fished and nothing happened except that the tide ran stronger and the moss kept accumulating on my hook. Then a striped bass splashed in the rip halfway to the railroad trestle; then another and another, and one that made a smash like the sound of a Mack truck dropping from the bridge.

Another dafty like myself arrived.

"Any luck?"

"They're in, and feeding, but I haven't had a strike."

As I spoke the rod tip jerked savagely and I set the hook hard. The fish hung for a moment, then started down tide. I let him run and when he slacked, I braked with the thumb stall and started reeling. The star brake was set to handle a 10-pound pull and I knew the fish hooked weighed no less.

"You're into a good one," said the newly arrived dafty, pausing at his job of rigging his rod.

As he spoke the striper started his second run. I loosed the drag a little. I didn't brake. I just kept the line taut. I didn't do anything wrong, so help me! But the line went slack and the lightly hooked fish was gone.

"Tough," said the other dafty, sympathetically. I omit my own quotations.

MUST BE THE ANGLER

Half-tide flowed like a mill race and noisy as a waterfall. A school of good fish worked through. My unknown companion hooked two, led them skillfully to the bridge end, netted them, one a six-pounder, one that weighed perhaps better than seven. The sky began graying. My friend reeled in, picked up his fish and vanished.

"Good luck," he said. I didn't have another strike.

At dawn I went calling on Capt. Myron Hathaway. He's a lean tanned Cape Codder with a skin nut-browned by weather. He has fished Buzzards Bay and Buttermilk Bay for striped bass all his life and no man knows any more than he about those waters and the fish in them. I told him my jinx story, told him of its latest episode, protested I hadn't done anything wrong while handling that bass.

"Maybe you didn't," he said dryly. "Sometimes, you know, the fish do something right."

He sniffed the misty morning and the flooding tide.

"The sun will be out before noon," he said. "Now, if I were you (he never says to do this or that) I'd go out there in the skiff (tracing in the sand) and anchor about here (marking the spot) and fish through the half tide on the ebb."

He straightened up.

"And you'll get a good fish and the sun will be out."

So I went where he said, and did as he said, and I drowned my jinx in the rip of the ebb tide with two bright stripers! But there was still a fog and mist when I rowed back to his beach a half hour before noon.

"What'll the big one weigh, Capt?"

He looked and hefted.

Well, I'd say 8¼ pounds. Course he might weigh a little more or a little less. Let's take him up to the scales."

We took him up to the scales and he weighed 8¼, not more nor less, a bright, firm hard fighting fish that had taken me a half hour, on light tackle, to kill.

"And look," said Cap Hathaway, "the fog is going. Here comes the sun."

Even my wife said it was a lovely fish and that she was happy I would be normal again, or as near normal as I ever am in fishing season.

battle for Conrad's as will R. U. Brett for Timothy Smith and of course J. V. Day, for Smith Patterson.

Edmund O'Connell has primed Paul Carver and F. Alan Hallworth to keep Slattery's in the running. And, as usual, White's will field a strong aggregation, one which Capt. Frank Black is confident will retain the Moeser Cup which it won two years ago. Frank Black, Johnny McNiff, who won the low gross last season, 75, Leonard W. Lahey, Raymond Willis and Edward Tabor will comprise the White team.

It the event that they have their games tuned up today as well as they did a year back, E. L. Hubbard of Whitney and Richard Wagner of MacDonnell will be among the prize winners. E. L. Hubbard, who was runner-up to Ray Mouimet in the first junior championship, which in those days was known as the interscholastic championship, at Oakley in 1914 captured the low net in Class A last year, while "Rich" Wagner wound up one stroke behind Johnny McNiff with a very snappy 76.

Title Polo Opens

Arizona Vs. Tigers

By SAM BROGNA

Making its first trip East since 1931, the University of Arizona outdoor polo team takes on the crack Princeton team Saturday afternoon in the nightcap of a double-header of the National Intercollegiate Outdoor Polo Championships at Harvard's new home grounds Forbes Field, in Westwood.

In the opening game scheduled to start at 3 o'clock, Harvard meets West Point. The Arizona-Princeton fray is expected to get underway at 4:30.

PLAY FOR TITLE SATURDAY

The winners of these two games will meet in the second round at the same field Wednesday, June 12 at 4:30 o'clock. Yale and Pennsylvania Military College, the other two entries in the championships will play at Forbes Field on Thursday June 13. The two finalists will meet in the championship match the following Saturday June 15.

On the basis of its showing in the West to date, the Arizona aggregation is hailed as the best in western part of the United States. Of the 25 games played during the year, the team won 20, lost three and tied two.

"Pinky" Woods and the rest of the Crusaders will be in the Hub this week-end.

The Holy Cross baseball team performs in Boston for the first time this season Saturday afternoon when they meet Harvard in a return game at Soldiers field. And two days later, Jack Barry leads his troupe to the Heights for the second game of the best-of-three game series with Boston College.

Given a fair break by the weatherman, the largest gathering of the season should be on hand for both tilts. The annual appearance of the Worcester school is looked forward to by most of the collegiate following.

If the invaders continue to get the brand of pitching that "Pinky" Woods, Ernie Ford and Jack Creamer have been furnishing all season, they will have little difficulty in winning both games.

Woods set the Eagles back with three hits on Memorial Day at Fitton Field and, previous to this, he hurled a two-hitter against Providence.

After the Eagle contest, both nines return to Fitton Field the following day for the climax.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

JIMMY FOXX is ALL ball player. Apart from his remarkable ability as a hitter and his fine fielding, Foxx has more competitive spirit and courage than the average run of athletes. He refuses to permit anything to get him discouraged, while he forgets his own physical ailments as he strives to win more games for the Red Sox.

JIMMY FOXX

When Foxx thrilled more than 33,000 fans by his smashing home run that won the second Sunday game for the Sox, he was suffering from broken blood vessels on his back as a result of having been hit by a pitched ball by Mike Tresh of the White Sox in the first game.

Dr. Tommy Richards had advised Foxx not to play in the second game, but Double X refused to remain out of the lineup. Foxx's terrific thump to deep center field was necessary to give the Sox an even break.

Foxx was ordered to remain in bed yesterday. Joe Cronin planned to move Lou Finney in to first base, and to place Dom in right field.

Foxx reported at Fenway Park and announced he was going to play.

"The Yanks are too close for comfort," Foxx told Joe Cronin, "and I feel I am all right to play."

Foxx does not possess as much color as did Babe Ruth, but he plays just as hard and is every bit as reliable in critical moments of ball games.

Foxx is one of the calmest of the big league stars. Even when an umpire has missed one and called him out on strikes, Foxx never complains. He figures that the decisions of umpires even up over a season's time.

For several years Foxx has been afflicted with a sinus condition. He has often gone from a doctor's office to the ball park where he tried to win a game for the Sox with a home run.

Foxx has reached the baseball heights without any show of hysterics, temperament or some of the other foolish antics employed by some stars to attract attention to themselves. I think the public appreciates Foxx's greatness as a ball player, and the courage that enables him to carry on for the good of his club when his own physical condition is not of the best.

* * *

WHEN RUTH was cracking home run records, they used to say that "as goes Ruth so go the Yanks." On those occasions when the Sultan of Swat was in a batting slump, his teammates would emulate him and do very little hitting.

Foxx is the big driving power of the Sox. He lifts the punch of the entire team.

There was a period last season when some persons thought young Ted Williams was going to overshadow Foxx as a hitter. Williams never shared this opinion, and always studied Jimmy's every move on the field, and listened to his words of advice in the clubhouse.

Williams for a time batted behind Foxx, and he frankly admitted he got attacks of nerves after watching what Double X did to a baseball. Cronin then shuffled around his batting order, and took the disheartening spot back of Foxx himself.

Foxx and Cronin both recognize Williams' tremendous potential possibilities as a baseball star, but they also know that the youngster at times gets jittery and that he requires additional major league experience to give him the necessary poise.

WILLIAMS' TENDENCY to pop off with ill-advised remarks has caused him to be placed under fire by numerous baseball men as well as by some of the writers. I would suggest to these individuals that they not consider Williams' cracks too seriously, and that they give some thought to the fact Ted is only 21 years old.

Williams' freshness enabled him to laugh at the obstacles that were in his path as he set forth to win a regular berth in the big leagues. When Ted joined the Sox he was geting $4500 and within a year his salary was raised to $12,000.

Ted earned the extra money by his hard hitting. True, the youngster made numerous costly fielding mistakes, but his average as a ball player was high.

Like most young athletes, Williams gets discouraged when he is in a slump. He does not realize that even batting slumps end in time, but he will gain this knowledge with experience.

Williams must learn to grin and bear it, and try a little bit more when the breaks go against him.

The public likes to see its ball players giving everything they have every second they are on the diamond. It has a particular fondness for great stars like Foxx who can carry on and win even when every bone and muscle in their bodies is paining.

Milnar's Hurling Inspires Indians

NEW YORK, June 4 (INS)—If the old saying that any team with two 20-game pitchers wins the pennant holds good this season, Alva Bradley, owner of the Cleveland Indians, today might just as well place his order for a flag pole on which to tack the 1940 American League banner.

In addition to Bob Feller, considered a sure-shot to cop 20 or more triumphs, the Indians now boast of Al Milnar, a southpaw who yesterday registered his seventh victory against one loss. Feller's record to date is eight wins and two defeats.

Milnar, who has looked impressive in every start this year, was at his best in shutting out the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 0, on seven scattered hits yesterday. Ray Mack, rookie second sacker, helped hoist the Tribe to within a game of the league-leading Boston Red Sox by collecting three hits, including his fourth home run of the year.

BROWN IN RESCUE ROLE

Although outhit, 14 to 10, the Chicago White Sox sluggers operated better with men on bases to upset the Red Sox, 7 to 4. Bill Dietrich was the winning pitcher, although he had to be rescued by Clint Brown, who was appearing for the 16th time this season in the role of a fireman.

At the same time, the New York Yankees won their fourth straight contest from the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 1, to tighten further the race in the first division of the junior circuit. Detroit, in third place, lost ground to both the Indians and Yanks by dropping a 9 to 3 decision to the Washington Senators.

In the National League, the standings of the clubs remained almost stationary. The league-leading Cincinnati Reds maintained their two-game advantage over the Brooklyn Dodgers by defeating the Boston Bees, 3 to 2. Paul Derringer after getting away to a shaky first inning start when the Bees scored their only runs, settled down to gain his sixth triumph.

CUBS EASY FOR DODGERS

Meanwhile, the Brooklyn Dodgers, handicapped by injuries, managed to eke out a 3 to 2 victory over the Chicago Cubs. It was the third time in two days that the Dodgers have taken the measure of the Cubs.

Tough luck continued to hound the Pittsburgh Pirates, who dropped a 4 to 3 decision to the New York Giants. Joe Bowman, pinch-hitting for Danny McFayden in the ninth, hit what appeared to be a tying home run inside the park, but tripped rounding third base and was tagged out. Harry Danning continued his heavy hitting for the Giants, collecting three safeties, including a homer.

BEES MEET THEIR ONLY 'COUSINS'

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 4—Happy to get out of Cincinnati, the Bees arrived here today to inaugurate night baseball here in Pittsburgh this evening.

The Swarm, in seventh place, two full games ahead of the Pirates, hope to increase their lead and maintain their season's record against the Bucs, which is still unsmirched.

In their first visit to the Smoky City last month, the Bees swept all three games, and in the Pirate's lone game in Boston, Frankie Frisch's boys bowed again.

Yesterday, the Bees wound up their series with the league leaders and dropped a 3 to 2 verdict to come out of Redland with only one triumph in four starts.

They had the misfortune of stacking up against Paul Derringer when the big right hander was really hot.

Gene Moore singled with one gone and Hassett hit a double play ball to Billy Werber who fired to second forcing Moore but when Second Baseman Frey rifled it along to first Big Frank McCormick dropped the ball and Hassett reached. West then doubled and Ross singled to give the Bees their only two runs of the game.

Oddly enough, the three Cincinnati runs were tallied in the same frame. Craft walked and after Frey forced Craft, Mike McCormick doubled. Frank McCormick then duplicated Mike's double and two runs scampered home.

Frank McCormick moved to third while Sisti tossed out Lombardi and came home when Miller fumbled Werber's grounder with what proved to be the winning run.

The Bees had a big chance to tie the game up in the ninth when Chet Ross opened the final inning with a triple but Derringer then poured it on. He forced Cuccinello to roll weakly to the box and Lopez did the same. Miller then popped to Frey ending the game.

There was one bright spot as far as the Bees were concerned and that was the great performance of Lou Fette who proved that he was back in shape.

Manager Casey Stengel yanked Joe Sullivan after the first inning and Lou hurled seven full frames allowing only three hits and was never in any trouble.

Meade Starts Off Well at Suffolk

Don Meade, who probably will do most of his riding at Suffolk Downs when Col. E. R. Bradley sends his string there after the close of the Belmont meeting, made an auspicious start at the Boston track.

He rode the Tower Stable's Raise Up to a smashing four-lengths victory over Mrs. Emil Denemark's Colorado Ore in the Grade C allowance race that headed the card.

Umpire Geisel calls the play. Dickey beat Shortstop Lyn Lary's toss to Susce after Lary fielded Joe Gordon's grounder. The Yanks won, 7-1, over the Browns, who were to open against the Sox at Fenway today.

Pets Tackle Springfield Nine at Garden

Girls' softball gets back into the picture at the Garden this evening with another twin-bill. The Olympets meet the Franklin Cleaner Girls of Springfield in the feature, while the Totem Pole and Rhode Island All-Star teams play the prelim.

The first game will start at 7:30, and the Olympets-Franklin fray begins at 9 p. m.

Both Boston teams offer pitchers new to the Hub. Helen Johnston started the season last year with the Olympets, and enjoyed success, both as a pitcher and batter. She twirled the Pets to several early season victories before retiring.

On the Totem Polo hill will be a newcomer, Herminia Franks of Green Bay, Wisconsin. Miss Franks has pitched one game this year. She registered a win for the Pets over their conquerors, the Fisk Girls, at Chicopee Falls last Sunday, by 7-6.

Olympets will be without the services of the strong right fielder, Edna Stafford. Miss Stafford pulled a ligament in her right arm last Tuesday night, and will not be available until next week. In Edna's right field berth will be Ellie Haydock of Revere, the Pets regular third sacker. Rose Boyle of Framingham will take over the hot corner position.

Both invading clubs have played in Boston before. The Franklin Cleaner Girls made a fine impression at the Garden last summer, when they lost a 6-4 game to the Olympets. They were known as the Alling Rubber team at that time.

DIZZY'S LAST STAND NEW MOUND THRILLER

CHICAGO, June 4 (AP)—The oblivion accorded worn-out ball players beckons to Dizzy Dean, but the one-time great pitcher isn't bowing out without one last desperate gamble to regain his old niche in baseball.

Always a fighter with a great heart, Dizzy refuses to give up hopes of again becoming a star big league hurler.

A few days ago Dean asked owner Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs to send him back to the minors where he plans to experiment with a new delivery. Wrigley agreed and the club announced yesterday all big league teams had waived on Dean, thereby setting the stage for his return to the minors.

The plan, as outlined now, is to option Dean to Tulsa, a Cub affiliate in the Texas League, in which circuit he began his amazing flight to major league stardom.

PLANS SIDEARM DELIVERY

Recently Dean's arm was examined by Dr. George Bennett of Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. The physician told Dean he was through as an overhand pitcher. He suggested Dizzy try a sidearm delivery.

"We can't try out Dr. Bennett's suggestion in the big leagues," explained Dizzy's wife, Patricia. "The majors aren't for experiments, so we want to go back to the minors and see what happens.

"We know it is a big gamble. If Dizzy fails to click down there with his new delivery, and he satisfies himself that he's really through, at least we'll know where we stand. It hasn't been easy you know, his trying to win for the Cubs after all his big years in St. Louis.

"But if it develops that his arm really is finished, then we can take it. After all, baseball isn't all there is."

GREAT WHEN CARDINAL

The Cubs obtained Dean in April, 1938, from the St. Louis Cards for $185,000 and Pitchers Curt Davis and Clyde Shoun and Outfielder George Stainback. The pitchers still are with the Cards, but Stainback now is in the International League.

Dean hung up a sparkling record with St. Louis, but never remotely approached it with the Cubs. He won 13 and lost five for Chicago in 1938 and 1939. This season he has been knocked out four times and has finished one game, a five-hit victory against the Cincinnati Reds.

After a brief but brilliant career with Houston in the Texas League, Diz went to the Cards in 1932. In six years he won 133 games, an average better than 22 a season, winning 30 games in 1934 with a pennant winner. He was voted the National League's most valuable player that year.

Wilson's Horse Pays $72.90

One of Dave Wilson's Code Book sleepers came very much to life on yesterday's Delaware Park program when Wake awoke to slip into second place in the opening race.

Although the 2-year-old filly missed the win jackpot, she turned over the pretty price of $72.90 to place and $33.30 to show on $2 mutuel tickets.

This race was Wake's second start of her racing career, proving how well tabbed Wilson was on this one.

ATHLETE'S FOOT

Don't Pay 'til Relieved

According to the Government Health Bulletin No. E-23, at least 50% of the adult population of the United States are being attacked by the disease known as Athlete's Foot.

Usually the disease starts between the toes. Little watery blisters form, and then skin cracks and peels. After a while the itching becomes intense, and you feel as though you would like to scratch off all the skin.

Beware of It Spreading

Often the disease travels all over the bottom of the feet. The soles of your feet become red and swollen. The skin also cracks and peels, and the itching becomes worse and worse.

Get relief from this disease as quickly as possible, because it is very contagious, and it may go to your hands or even to the under arm or crotch of the legs.

Here's How to Relieve It

The germ that causes the disease is known as Tinea Trichophyton. It hides itself deep in the tissues of the skin, and is very hard to kill. A test made shows it takes 15 minutes of boiling to destroy the germ, whereas, upon contact, H. F. kills the germ within 15 seconds.

H. F. was developed solely for the purpose of relieving Athlete's Foot. It is a liquid that penetrates and dries quickly. You just paint the affected parts. It peels off the tissue of the skin where the germ breeds.

Itching Often Relieved Quickly

As soon as you apply H. F. you may find that the itching is relieved. You should paint the infected parts with H. F. night and morning until your feet are better. Usually this takes from three to ten days, although in severe cases it is well to consult a specialist.

H. F. should leave the skin soft and smooth. You may marvel at the quick way it brings you relief. It costs you nothing to try so if you are troubled with Athlete's Foot why wait a day longer.

H. F. Sent On Free Trial

Sign and mail the coupon and a bottle of H. F. will be mailed you immediately. Don't send any money and don't pay the postman any money. Don't pay anything any time unless H. F. is helping you. If it does help we know you will be glad to send us $1 for the treatment at the end of ten days That's how much faith we have in H. F. Read, sign and mail the coupon today.
